

Chilled Capital Hushed for Vanier Funeral

Sorrow Fills Final Farewell

OTTAWA (CP) — A mourning capital paid its final farewell tribute to Governor-General Vanier in three hours of solemn ceremony Wednesday that intermingled state pageantry with notes of religious triumph. (See also Page 13.)

It ended when the body of the 78-year-old head of state was gently placed aboard a funeral train that pulled slowly away in the early afternoon bound for Quebec City, where he is to be buried after further state and church services today.

Thousands ignored zero wind and a biting west wind to stand bareheaded and silent under a sunny sky as the massive funeral cortege formed on Parliament Hill, where Gen. Vanier's closed coffin had lain in state in the red Senate chamber since late Monday. More than 25,000 viewed it there.

The flag-draped coffin had not been opened since the governor-general's frail body, dressed in his formal blue general's uniform, was placed in it soon after his death from a heart collapse Sunday morning.

Eight red-jacketed RCMP constables carried the coffin out to the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings, hung with black drapes. There it was placed on a gun carriage drawn by 60 sailors from Halifax in their naval blues.

A few moments earlier one of the sailors, who had been waiting in the cold breeze for better than an hour, collapsed on the asphalt roadway.

Dr. Jean Vanier, one of Gen. Vanier's four sons, had just emerged with his family and quickly went to the sailor. He spoke to him reassuringly and helped him to his feet.

Ottawa Back To Crises As Usual

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament Hill today returns to the twin crises it placed aside to mourn the death of Governor-General Vanier.

Put a UFO In Your Washer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Flying objects which frightened area residents by casting "an eerie glow and dripping flames" were identified Wednesday as laundry bags.

Folies said science students at West Virginia University launched tainted laundry bags with a propulsion system based on the hot-air principle. A cardboard rattle holder and a brace of candles which heated the air inside kept the bags aloft.

The tainted bags caused the "eerie glow" and dripping flames.

Controversial German Loses Post

BREMEN (AP) — Adolf von Thadden, controversial deputy chairman of the National Democratic party in West Germany, lost his post as the party's state chairman of Lower Saxony Wednesday after a court ruled his election was invalid.

He beat incumbent Lothar Kuehne 115-72 Feb. 2 but the court threw out the vote because Kuehne was technically still in office at the time.

Meat Strike Boils

Irish Farmers Chase Minister

DUBLIN (AP) — Picket lines of striking farmers blocked Dublin Wednesday and turned back trucks from Northern Ireland loaded with cattle and vegetables intended for the capital of the Irish Republic.

Dealers talked of a meat famine by the weekend. Stocks of vegetables were getting low in stores as a week-long strike entered its third day.

About 500 angry farmers crashed through a police line as George Colley, industry and commerce minister, arrived to open a factory at Ballymaddock, 60 miles outside Dublin.

FARMER HURT

The farmers pelted the car with chunks of turf and hammered on its roof with placards. Colley fled to a hotel, with the farmers in pursuit. The crowd broke up after hearing pleas from farmer leaders.

● A cabinet meeting was called for 4 p.m., after the government mourners return from Quebec City, to deal with the Sharp-Gordon collision over the U.S.-owned Mercantile Bank.

The two ministers sat together at the funeral service for General Vanier in Ottawa Wednesday, but so far, there is no word that ministers who pray together, stay together.

● The Commons steering committee on defence was called Wednesday to try to break the deadlock in the defence committee on the unification bill.

Defence Minister Hellyer has made it known that he will resign if the bill is blocked.

The Tories are pressing to delay it and embarrass Mr. Hellyer, whose leadership hopes are on the line.

Conservative spokesman Gordon Churchill hinted Wednesday that his party will make a deal.

If General Guy Simonds and Air Marshal W. A. Curtis were allowed to testify, the Tories would agree to reintroduction of the bill in the next session, starting after the Easter recess, and immediate debate on its final stages.

MONDAY AT LATEST

Prime Minister Pearson has insisted that the bill must be passed before the recess, which was due to start Friday, but now is postponed a couple of weeks.

The question that the cabinet has to settle immediately is legislation affecting the Mercantile Bank.

The Bank Act legislation is to

BRAATEN FREE --PROBE STAYS

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday dismissed a contempt charge against union leader Orville Braaten, who had been jailed Feb. 22 for contempt of a royal commission investigating invasion of privacy.

But Mr. Justice Peter Seaton refused a further application by Mr. Braaten's lawyer to halt the "bugging" inquiry.

Mr. Braaten, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, had been free on bail since his lawyer, Mary Southin, presented the applications Feb. 27.

Mr. Justice Seaton criticized hearing commissioner R. A. Sargent for taking the inquiry beyond the scope outlined in the terms of reference. He said all parties attempted to use the commission as a sounding board for an inter-union dispute.

Mr. Braaten was jailed after refusing to answer inquiry questions about his union's dispute with the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Justice Seaton said Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

The royal commission was triggered by the electronic bugging of last November's convention of Braaten's union.

Mr. Justice Seaton said the arguments between the unions might be the background to the animosity between them, but not background to the use of electronic wiretapping equipment for the purpose of invading privacy.

RETURN TO SCOPE

The order-in-council did not authorize an investigation into the union dispute, he said.

Mr. Justice Seaton said it was up to commissioner Sargent to determine the best manner of returning the inquiry to the scope set down in the order-in-council.

In releasing Mr. Braaten on the habeas corpus writ, the court said the warrant committing him was defective. It should have alleged the questions Mr. Braaten failed to answer touched the subject matter of the inquiry.

DID NOT TOUCH

Mr. Justice Seaton said it follows from this conclusion that Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

Mr. Braaten's lawyer applied for the writ and restraining order after the union leader's order for commitment. She also asked that the commissioner be restrained from committing any person to jail. The latter application was refused.

Red Revolt Crushed In Indonesia

JAKARTA (UPI) — Units of the Indonesian army crushed an uprising by outlawed Communists in a battle in central Java, the official Indonesian news agency Antara reported Thursday.

It said the leader of the Communist force and 80 of his followers were killed.

Antara reported more than 1,000 Communist cadres were captured, crushing an attempt to stage a coup.

Central Java is a stronghold of forces loyal to President Sukarno, who bitterly oppose the current efforts to strip him of his title and put him on trial for treason as an alleged accomplice in the abortive Communist coup of October, 1965.

Antara's report came as the Indonesian congress debated a resolution demanding Sukarno's dismissal and trial as a traitor.

Gen. Suharto, the Indonesian army strongman who has assumed most of Sukarno's powers, warned harsh actions could start a civil war.

Antara said the clash erupted when army troops raided a key resistance base of the outlawed Indonesian Communist party. It had been camouflaged as the headquarters of a mystic identified as Suro, whose practice was banned by central Java military authorities last year.

British Kept Rights

Offshore Argument Begins

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government argued Wednesday that British Columbia up to the time of union with Canada in 1871 had no jurisdiction over lands under its territorial sea or the continental shelf off its coast.

C. F. J. Carson, head of a five-member battery of lawyers appearing for the federal government, made the assertion as the Supreme Court of Canada opened hearings into a government-ordered reference into ownership of mineral rights off the B.C. coast.

Prepared to argue against Ottawa are lawyers representing Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and B.C.

Prince Edward Island is represented at the hearings but will not present any arguments. Manitoba and Alberta served notice they will not be represented.

Quebec had refused from the start to appear and Saskatchewan with no seacoast also is taking no part in the legal battle.

Opening the federal case Wednesday, Mr. Carson said two areas are under question—the land under the three-mile territorial sea off Canada, and the land under the continental shelf which stretches seaward from the three-mile limit.

He said B.C. was not a sovereign state before union with Canada. It had been a British colony and the extent of its government and jurisdiction were subject to the control of the British.

The British had rights in the territorial sea, and had never transferred these rights to the colony.

Because of the funeral of Governor-General Vanier, the court held only a short afternoon sitting but will return to its normal two sittings today.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, administrator of the country pending appointment of a new governor-general, is not on the bench for the reference.

Seven justices, headed by Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright, are hearing the reference although it is the practice for the full nine-man court to hear constitutional issues.

Spy for Garrison May Be Produced

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A state judge indicated Wednesday that District Attorney Jim Garrison may have to produce his unnamed "confidential informant" at a preliminary hearing next week for Clay L. Shaw, wealthy New Orleans resident booked for conspiracy in the 1963 Kennedy assassination.

"It is my inclination now that the identity of the informant will have to be disclosed at the hearing," Criminal District Judge Bernard Bagert said at the conclusion of a hearing in which he refused to dismiss the case for lack of jurisdiction. Bagert said he would rule next Tuesday on the defence request that the informant be identified.

Shaw, 54, former managing director of the International Trade Mart here, was arrested March 1 and booked on a murder conspiracy charge in connection with Garrison's five-month investigation of the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas of President John F. Kennedy. Shaw is free under $10,000 bond.

In an application for a warrant to search Shaw's home, the district attorney alleged that Shaw, Lee Harvey Oswald, David W. Ferrie and other persons met at Ferrie's apartment here in September, 1963, and agreed "to kill John F. Kennedy."

Present at these secret meetings, said Garrison, was "a confidential informant . . . who saw the conspirators and heard the plans." The informant was questioned while under the influence of "truth serum," the district attorney's office said.

Feb. 22. His death was officially attributed to natural causes. Oswald was killed by the late Jack Ruby two days after the assassination.

Following the hearing, Al Oser, an assistant district attorney, was asked about the defence request that the informant be produced.

"They will get everything they ask for Tuesday," he said.

Improved Warhead U.K. Goal

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is developing an improved thermonuclear warhead for the A-3 Polaris missiles on its nuclear submarines, informed sources said Wednesday.

But the sources added that Britain has no plans for further underground atomic tests.

They discounted as "highly speculative" a front-page story in The Times which said the government was likely to work out a new generation of nuclear weapons. The story said this would almost certainly involve another British underground nuclear test.

NO EVIDENCE

Oswald was identified by the official Warren commission as the man who killed Kennedy. The commission said it found no credible evidence that others were involved.

The FBI investigated Shaw at the time and cleared him. Shaw has denied knowing either Oswald or Ferrie, a freelance pilot who was found dead in bed

Billions More For Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Congress quickly approved and sent to the White House Wednesday a compromise $4,500,000,000 supplemental authorization bill for the Vietnam war.

The measure also included a policy declaration initiated by the senate and approved Tuesday by Senate-House conferees calling for a multi-nation peace conference to end the war "as soon as possible."

The final bill was passed by the House on a 363-13 vote. The Senate then approved it by a voice vote without debate.

Red Chinese Back on Job

Purge Over for Some

PEKING (Reuters) — A number of top officials purged during China's "cultural revolution" have quietly appeared back at their old jobs this week.

Many of the officials, some of whom were publicly humiliated by Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's militant young Red Guards, dropped out of sight for months.

Their sudden reappearance followed an editorial two weeks ago in the Communist party's theoretical journal Red Flag which took a conciliatory tone toward many officials purged since the cultural revolution swept into the open last summer.

The editorial said that, provided they made self-criticisms, even those who had committed mistakes could be restored to important positions.

Cong Guerrillas Hit Twice

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas of South Vietnam's Mekong Delta killed six Americans, wounded 25 and perhaps captured one Wednesday in attacks on two camps of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division, which is getting set to challenge their 20-year grip in that populous rice bowl.

The guerrillas, who prefer to operate by night, struck in each case before dawn. They faded away in the darkness under counter-fire from American artillery and helicopter gunships.

The targets in these first major attacks against the U.S. newcomers were the Dong Tam camp, on the My Tho River 40 miles southwest of Saigon, and the Rach Kien outpost, 18 miles southwest of the South Vietnamese capital. There are on the northern flank of the fertile, river-laced territory that is home to about half of South Vietnam's 15,000,000 people.

Eighty mortar shells rained on the Dong Tam camp, to which part of the 9th Division moved in January as the first American ground force assigned permanently to help South Vietnamese government troops break the long stalemate in the delta. Two were killed and 23 wounded at that camp.

How to relieve BACKACHE

By Prominent Bahamians

Two Magazines Sued

TORONTO (CP) — Two prominent Bahamians have filed suit against two United States magazines, claiming damages for recently published articles.

Sir Stafford Sands, Bahamas minister of finance and tourism before last January's elections, filed suit in Toronto Tuesday against Time Inc. for a story published in Life Feb. 3 entitled The Scandal in the Bahamas.

Sir Etienne Dupuch, publisher of the Nassau Daily Tribune, filed suit against Time Inc. and Sinnott News Co., a Toronto magazine distributing firm, for alleged libel in the same magazine.

The Bahamas publisher also filed a writ against Curtis Publishing Co., publishers of Saturday Evening Post, for an article in the Feb. 25 edition Evil on an Island in the Sun. He also is suing the Curtis Distributing Co. Ltd.

Police Quell Rioters

JAIPUR, India (UPI)—Police armed with submachineguns Wednesday patrolled riot-torn Jaipur to head off new disorders by Indians opposed to rule by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's party in Rajasthan state in southern India. Army reinforcements were standing by.

Authorities imposed a curfew on this capital city of Rajasthan following violent demonstrations Tuesday in which at least six persons were killed. But despite warnings that violators would be shot, excited crowds gathered in alleys and side streets to taunt police.

A few scattered stone-throwing incidents were reported during the day, but demonstrators fled when the police threatened to open fire.

The Usual Scurry

THE VERBOSITY that as usual marks the early weeks of the legislature is beginning to take its toll. Members are dismayed lest the current session forces a 10-day Easter recess and so night sittings into the early hours of the morning are in prospect if the legislation yet to be dealt with can be put through in time.

One might ask why the need for a 10-day Easter recess. One day, that of the normal public holiday, should be enough. One can also think sittings that last after midnight to be a queer way to run parliamentary affairs. They do nothing for legislative tempers or for the proper examination of legislative measures. This annual scurry to rush things through in order to get finished is what vitiates good legislation and induces subsequent amendments.

Sincere tribute was paid to the memory of Governor-General Vanier, but it is not to the credit of James Bay that it didn't adjourn on Wednesday to join in the national day of mourning. The premier excused this on the ground that General Vanier would have preferred the legislature to carry on. The governor-general would never have expressed himself on the subject but this was nevertheless a gratuitous assumption.

In a session lasting as a rule for six or seven weeks it should be easy enough to so regulate the pace of things that an even flow of time and debate ensures more orderly processes. Obviously if there wasn't so much time spent on speechifying and acrimonious argument there wouldn't be need for a helterskelter closure.

There has been some attention paid in Ottawa to reforming the rules of parliament; it would seem that something of same would benefit the course of events at James Bay.

Independent Indies

THE FORMULA by which six small Caribbean islands have reached independence and, at the same time, preserve their association with Great Britain is simple and sensible.

The former colonies of Antigua, Dominica, St. Lucia, Grenada, St. Vincent and St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla are entirely self-governing, but Great Britain assumes the responsibility for their defence and will represent them in the diplomatic field.

For the islands, it is an extraordinarily generous arrangement, for Britain will continue to honor existing aid arrangements which cost her around $10,000,000 a year.

Britain appoints a governor in each of the separate states, whose status will very much resemble that of a governor-general in an independent Commonwealth country, who takes no direction from London, but provides the necessary liaison.

The islands share a single supreme court and court of appeal, and in other common interests may refer to the West Indies Associated States' council of ministers.

St. Vincent, incidentally, will not embark on its voyage of independence until June, but the other five already enjoy their new status.

The arrangement is very flexible. All or either of the states can vote severance of the British ties after a 90-day waiting period, and Britain, likewise, can dissolve the arrangement through Parliament, but only after a six-month notice of intent. There is a simple procedure if any of the associated states wishes to federate with another, to switch association to some other West Indies island or to a Commonwealth country.

This latter provision is obviously made to allow association with Canada, under the same terms as in the association with Britain, and the prospect in some respects is alluring. Without considering the advantages of a possible customs union, it would be a position of trust and responsibility which this country can well afford and which should be a source of pride. It would add to our stature as a nation.

If ever the time comes when all or any one of these islands approaches the Canadian government in this matter of association it is to be hoped that the suggestion would be accepted on the same generous terms to which Great Britain has agreed.

Chance to Be First

NO MATTER who wins the federal-provincial battle over offshore rights, all Canada will gain when the sea floor along its coasts begins in earnest to give up its treasures, oil, gas or minerals. For that reason, and also in the interest of national pride, it may be questioned if the country is doing all it should to be, if possible, in the forefront in exploration and exploitation of the ocean depths on the continental shelves and then in the no-man's-land beyond.

Despite the concentration of the United States and the Soviet Union on pushing forward in the other direction—into space—we are likely to continue to be far outsped by these two nations, and perhaps others, in underwater research. But this does not mean that Canada is incapable of being first in discovery and invention, nor that it should wait for foreign technological advances in its approach to sea-bottom wealth.

Under construction in eastern Canada for the navy is a hydrofoil anti-submarine vessel which grew in estimated cost from $9,100,000 in the spring of 1963 to $43,992,000 in the spring of 1966, the latter figure including fighting equipment. It is now doubtful that the craft will ever be used in the role intended.

These facts are cited not in criticism of such defence experimentation, but in illustration of the lengths to which Ottawa has been prepared to go to be in the van of marine development of this nature.

But perhaps it would have been more profitable to the nation had the money for the hydrofoil instead gone into the devising and building of a deep-diving or bottom-crawling craft that could explore, sample, photograph and measure the ocean floor off the coasts more efficiently than can be done by probes from the surface. And if Canada can afford to spend so much on an experimental vessel of the one kind, it surely ought to be able, in succession, to start work on the other.

The Cartoonists' 'Dream' Politician

U.S. Presidency

Kennedy Challenge Apparent

By PHILIP DEANE

SENATOR Robert F. Kennedy, it now seems safe to assume, might still run for the presidency in 1968 under the right combination of circumstances. That is the significance of the senator's recent speech on Vietnam.

It was well written and cleverly calculated to attract liberal and anti-war support without laying the senator open to the charge of wishing to capitulate. Mr. Kennedy wants the bombing stopped to see if the North Vietnamese will negotiate and if they do not he suggests an alternative to a resumption of the bombing, such as building a great impassable barrier from the sea to the Mekong river in Thailand and concentrating on building up South Vietnam behind this wall rather than tearing down North Vietnam.

These ideas are not new; nor are they necessarily right. Robert Kennedy is not even the first senator to advance them. What lends his speech special importance is his timing, his own status as the heir to the Kennedy cult of gracious government, his qualifications for leadership and the obvious fear in which his moves are held by President Johnson.

The hopes of the recent Khrushchev-Kennedy peace offensive are still vivid memories. Why peace eluded us is still a debated question. Kennedy, and what the world wanted to see right now, that the latest peace effort need not be considered dead or buried, that it could be revived.

Being Robert Kennedy, brother of the martyred president, he commands an audience automatically, but he would not have the automatic support he obviously enjoys among journalists if he were unchanged from his early acid image of senate inquisitor and hatchet man for his brother, Robert F. Kennedy has matured.

He is quiet, more poised. He obviously learned well as his brother's right-hand man. He has learned more since, yet admits to fallibility and openly relies on advisers to whom he gratefully gives credit. He demonstrates in such relationships an impressive elegance in the role of leader and consequently he has not only dedicated but friendly followers in contrast to Lyndon Johnson.

He is more what an increasingly unorganized and sophisticated America identifies with than Johnson is.

If the Vietnam war continues into next year's elections, the victory against it will grow, eroding President Johnson's support to the point where any reasonably attractive Republican might win. The Democrats could then give the nomination to Robert Kennedy. Mr. Kennedy obviously sees this as a growing possibility, otherwise he would not orchestrate so carefully his dissent from the official line, a dissent that could be politically costly if the president turns out to be successful after all in Vietnam.

Lyndon Johnson, by his intense and strained efforts to denigrate the senator's every move, only proves that a Kennedy challenge in 1968 is not such a long shot.

Ottawa Offbeat

Cynics Have Cause to Sneer At Blundering Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON
Columnist Ottawa Bureau

EVER wonder why, come hell or high water, good times or bad, hot war or cold, inflation or deflation, last year, this year and, you may be sure, next year, the federal government staff grows and grows and grows?

Grows to the point where it now takes one out of every four of your tax dollars to carry the annual $2,063,852,000 payroll for the 322,890 civil servants and crown corporation employees—excluding, of course, the armed forces—on the federal staff.

National expansion—of the economy and of federal enterprise—accounts for perhaps the biggest part, but by no means all of it.

That's the obvious, the part you see.

What you don't see is the part that would make you shake your head in wonderment.

Well, just how big has the expansion of the civil service been?

Take external affairs. It's on the Hazard record that Prime Minister Sir Wilfrid Laurier ran a one-man department of external affairs—a civil servant named William Mackenzie clipped The London Times and The Washington Star for him.

Ten or 15 years later the department had a staff of five on a branch of the prime minister's office. That was about 1925, little more than 40 years ago.

In the years since then, Canada's population has almost, but not quite, doubled.

And in those same years, the staff of external affairs has gone from five to 3,607.

What has happened that there should be this proliferation of people on the federal payroll? Economic expansion with everything getting bigger is, of course, one answer. The welfare state is another. And although to be perfectly honest, while it's the pattern or practice, but DOES happen.

The story is that of a former high-ranking civil servant in the seniority level just under deputy minister.

He was building a new division in his branch of the department and so he was scratching to find available jobs "slots" within the prescribed staff establishment.

His eye fell on... well, let's call him Mr. Attachee, whom he had seen walking in by his door promptly at 8:30 every morning and out again promptly at 5 p.m. every afternoon.

What, he wondered, did Mr. Attachee do between 8:30 and 5?

Nothing, as it turned out, except read the morning newspapers and then the afternoon editions, for which he was paid $3.20.

So the deputy-deputy called in.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—the Canadian conscription plebiscite was announced for April 27. RAF torpedo aircraft attacked the German battleship Tirpitz in a Norwegian fjord. Twenty hostiles were shot in Paris in reprisal for the killing of one German soldier.

the departmental personnel director and suggested that they get their hands on Mr. Attachee's job "slot"—either by having him transferred, or if it came to a pinch, asking for his resignation.

The personnel director was astute. He reminded the deputy-deputy that, yes, it WAS possible to dismiss a civil servant, but just barely.

In fact, to sack one was almost a career in itself. You can't get rid of a civil servant just for not doing anything. (There was the noted case of the public relations director of one department who daily locked himself in his office to work on his book until the day of his retirement.)

You may only dismiss a civil servant for not doing something he has been directed to do, or for having done it wrongly on a number of specific and well-documented occasions.

And having fired him—or tried to—you must be prepared to attend meetings, provide witnesses and argue your case from review board to superior review board to appeal board, for weeks, often months, sometimes years.

Understanding all this, the deputy-deputy, taking the direct route, summoned Mr. Attachee, and politely requested his resignation. Save time and trouble, he suggested.

Mr. Attachee took it quite calmly and within a few days directed a memorandum, in quadruplicate, to the deputy-deputy.

"Subject," it began, "Your oral request for my resignation."

"Subject request is not in accordance with departmental regulations," Mr. Attachee wrote. "These require you to state your reasons in writing so that the appeals system may be instituted. In the event that I receive a written request for my resignation with your reasons in writing, and within the departmental regulations, I intend appealing."

And that was that. Mr. Attachee was, finally, by default.

For the deputy-deputy concluded it would be easier to allow Mr. Attachee to continue his career of reading newspapers at public expense, and wangle a job increase in the department's supposedly rigidly controlled and limited staff establishment, than it would be to make the career of it that would be necessary in an attempt to dump him. Attempt that is, with no certain prospect of success either.

I often wonder if those who refer to the "home-owners' grant" by such names as "the biggest political gimmick of the day" would really have the grant system withdrawn thus placing the home-owners, in this respect, in the same position as a great many of us who are also paying ever-increasing municipal taxes, through increased rates, but receive no rebate from Mr. Bennett. This is one very expensive field where cashing in by no means being equally borne by all our citizens.

Also, the term "ability to pay" has become the most ambiguous of terms in common use today. And from what has been published about the Carter report there does not appear to be any prospect that some honest investigation in the method of assessing income tax are to be rectified. Income tax is one imposition which cannot be controlled and is causing steady reduction in the standard of living of many in the border class with fixed incomes to which I belong.

On the other hand there are children there whose training for a livelihood could be nothing. Their standard of living has been steadily improving, and to this I have no objection whatsoever. They have several children in respect of whom they receive substantial allowances from the government. I have no objection to this either but what I do object to is that the cost-sharing between such people and myself is inequitable in respect of school costs. While I am already being increasingly squeezed to help provide schools and more and more expensive teachers for these children I am also expected to vote "yes" to

I read an article by Ted Gaskell in The Inlander and I think the idea of serving a meal a day to aging, aged people living alone, discharged from hospital a bit soon on account of the ("meals on wheels") service, very wonderful.

It is a nice thought making sure they get at least one substantial meal a day until their strength returns.

The project is operated by the Saanich municipality, their firm supplying the drivers (volunteers), and backed by the Douglas Rotary Club. The meals are cooked by St. Joseph's Hospital employees. Naval and other people give their services periodically by taking the meals into the listed places.

It is such a wonderful idea, and the project could go ahead and expand. So thanks should go out to all from people who participate.

In Congress Party

Mme. Gandhi Faces Rivals' Challenge

THE Congress Party which has ruled India since the country became independent in 1947, has been re-elected to rule for another five years, but in the process has seen its overall majority in the national parliament cut from 238 to little more than 20. It has also lost its absolute majority in eight out of 16 state assemblies.

The narrow margin of the Congress victory raises several questions about the future. The first is whether Mrs. Indira Gandhi will continue as prime minister.

The second is whether Congress will have a sufficient majority to rule alone, or whether it may have to seek a coalition partner or a new election before the full five-year term expires.

The third question concerns the continued ability of Congress to take a strong line as a central government in dealing with states, at least four of which will have non-Congress governments.

Finally there is the question of how far the weakened position of the Congress government will affect its foreign policy and its handling of India's dispute with Pakistan over Kashmir.

A decision about the premier-ship is expected to be taken at a Congress Party meeting on March 12. Mrs. Gandhi appears to have a strong chance of remaining prime minister. Although the party has suffered a severe setback under her leadership her nationwide prestige as the late Jawaharlal Nehru's daughter is still a valuable asset at a time when the preservation of national unity against the pull of the federal states may be of the utmost importance for the country. Moreover one of the most sensational results of the election was the defeat of several of the most important Congress party bosses, especially of K. M. Munshi and K. L. Karve from Madras and S. K. Patil of Bombay.

Two of the most likely rival candidates for the premiership are Morarji Desai, formerly finance minister, who stood against Mrs. Gandhi in the premiership contest after the death of Lal Shastri, and Y. B. Chavan, home minister.

Chavan's chances rest mostly on his reputation as a strong man and the feeling that to deal with the difficult times ahead, including the serious food crisis, India needs more decisive leadership than Mrs. Gandhi has been able to provide.

Arguments for Desai are likely to come mostly from those who think the Congress Party should move further to the right, not only in economic policies, but also to meet what appears to be a swing of opinion in the country as a whole. The right-wing parties, Swatantra, which stands for a free enterprise economy and a pro-American foreign policy, and the ultra-nationalist Hindu nationalist Jan Sangh made the biggest gains from Congress although the biggest single defeat for Congress was in Madras in the DMK which is the local regionalist party.

But the opposition in the new parliament and the new Congress governments in the states are fairly evenly balanced between Right and Left.

In the national parliament of 500 elected members, Swatantra has replaced the Communists as the second biggest party after Congress, with the Jan Sangh in third place. If the DMK is included, the right wing should be able to muster about 100 votes and the left wing of the two Communist and two Socialist groups, about 70.

In four states which seem certain to have non-Congress governments, two—Orissa and Madras—administrations will lean to the Right. In the two others—Kerala and West Bengal—the Communists will hold the strongest position in the ruling coalitions.

In view of the balance between Right and Left in the opposition in the central parliament it is likely that Congress will try to continue to govern without taking a major coalition partner. They will probably count on supplementing their own small absolute majority with votes of some of the considerable number of independent members who include disaffected former members of Congress. But the new situation may have a long-term effect in hastening the polarization of the Congress Party itself between its Right and Left wings. Some observers foresee the gradual emergence of a new conservative grouping, which could include the right wing of Congress with the Swatantra Party and more moderate elements of the Jan Sangh. But this still appears a long way off.

Congress also faces a new situation in relations between the central government and the states. But the effect of having to deal with opposition governments in at least four states may not be both ways. There is no doubt that the authority of the central government has been weakened, but at the same time it may be easier for a Congress government in Delhi to be tough towards non-Congress supporters. And the Central government still has very strong powers of coercion, principally through its financial control.

The comparative weakness of the Delhi government is likely to show chiefly in its foreign relations, and especially in dealing with Kashmir and Pakistan. A government which is unsure of itself at home, and especially one under pressure from the ultra-nationalist Right, is unlikely to take the bold risks required to achieve a settlement of the Kashmir dispute, and so open a way to ending this still dangerous split within the subcontinent.

Medical Advance

By PAUL VAUGHAN
from London

A NEW hormone isolated by a doctor at the Royal Postgraduate Medical College at Hammersmith, London, may be used in the treatment of brittle bones in old people.

The hormone is called calcitonin. It is secreted by a group of cells inside the thyroid gland.

Bones go through a continuous, microscopic process of destruction and regrowth. Calcium from bone is supplied to the blood and plays an important part in controlling the regular beating of the heart and the transmitting of nerve impulses.

Calcitonin, taken from pigs, has already been used successfully in a number of patients with cancer of the bone. It is not a cure, but it slows down the destruction of bone, which is itself a dangerous feature of the disease.

Dr. Iain MacIntyre, who directed the team working on calcitonin at Hammersmith, says that the hormone might be used to treat a condition known as osteoporosis. This is a common condition, particularly among older women, in which bones become thin and brittle.

Another possible use is in space flight. Normal weight-bearing keeps up the regeneration of bone, but in a weightless environment bone would not be subjected to the mechanical stress it needs in order to stay healthy. On the other hand, the destruction process would continue.

In prolonged space flights this could be an important factor, Dr. MacIntyre thinks. He believes it could be used with weightless animals in orbit.

Work on calcitonin has been going on at Hammersmith since 1962. Dr. MacIntyre describes its discovery as "an exciting and radically new development in biology." He says: "It has been a long time since a new hormone and a new endocrine system has been discovered. It is very exciting scientifically, and it may be quite important practically."

Principle of Wage Self-Restraint Adopted

U.K. Unions Surrender Rights

By ROBERT C. TOTH from London

The British labor movement, oldest in the world, last week turned a historic corner away from the unregulated jungle of free collective bargaining on wages and adopted the principle of wage self-restraint.

Almost 90 per cent of the 8,500,000 members of the Trades Union Congress (TUC) — comparable to, but more powerful than, America's AFL-CIO — voted Thursday to give TUC officials authority to determine how much of a raise they will demand each year.

The decision is expected to effect the unions themselves as well as their political support for the Labor Party which they spawned 60 years ago but which has forced them to surrender sovereignty to the TUC.

The immediate effect is the end of the free-for-all wage philosophy in which each union tried to get all it could from every employer.

Instead, the TUC annually will examine the economic outlook and, in "consultation" with the government and the Confederation of British Industry (CBI), will set the standards for wage and salary increases to be negotiated by the unions.

Union demands for wages, and perhaps for reduced working hours, overtime pay, vacation time and other fringe benefits, will be first sent to the TUC, which will determine whether it conforms to its norm. If it does not, the TUC will try to persuade the union to reduce its claims.

The plan was tried in Holland and failed. But it has succeeded to some degree in Sweden for more than a decade, although there the wage raise norm is set in formal negotiations, not merely after consultations, with employers and the government.

The point remains, nonetheless, that Britain's organized labor has adopted the principle of wage self-restraint. It did not do so without reason. The alternative was, and is, legal restraint by the government.

Britain is pulling out of last summer's economic crisis, the latest and worst of the postwar series of "stop-go" cycles of recession and boom.

The mandatory pay and price freeze, imposed by the Labor government during the last half of 1966, has given way to the current six-month period of severe pay restraint in which the official norm for raises is zero, with exceptions for very low paid workers and those who promise to increase their productivity.

The government's legal powers end in August. Fearing the dam might then burst, it intends to take new powers to be held in reserve, to see that the flow is resumed gradually — specifically, powers to force postponement of wage claims for a year.

During that year the TUC plan would begin operating and only after expiration of the period would the plan be given a chance to work wholly on its own.

The unions agreed to the TUC's self-restraint program because they realize, as one TUC official said, that "the government is not kidding," and that a majority of the electorate, including most union members, would support the government on even harsher controls for an indefinite period.

The unions also recognize that things cannot go back to where they were. Ideally, they want full employment, an increasing national growth rate for the economy to permit more government spending on social welfare, and free collective bargaining.

"But these are incompatible for Britain today and the unions know it now," Prof. Ben Roberts of the London School of Economics said in an interview. "Something had to go, and since unions hold full employment most important, they gave up free bargaining on wages."

Acceptance of the TUC plan by the unions is the most far-reaching decision to "have come out of any trade union highly respected and sensitive general secretary, George Woodcock.

Peace Chance Lost?

By JOSEPH KRAFT From Washington

We may never know whether a chance to end the Vietnamese war was missed during the recent Tet truce. But there is no reason, least of all President Johnson's childish disposition to justify everything he does as entirely right all the time, to complicate future opportunities.

On the contrary, the important thing now is to prepare the ground better for the next chance to talk. And that means, above all, initiating a gradual scaling down of the bombing of North Vietnam.

As it happens, there is cause to be skeptical about some of the things now being said about the talks between Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin at the time of the truce. To be sure, the first session, on Feb. 6, appeared to be fruitful. For the British and Soviet leaders launched the possibility of a mutual freeze on the American and North Vietnam military build-up in South Vietnam.

But almost immediately after the Tet truce, which began next day, American intelligence discovered near the South Vietnamese border a third North Vietnamese division, not previously spotted in the vicinity. The military ran to the White House with that news, claiming the other side was only using the truce to improve its position and demanding stepped-up bombing raids.

By Wednesday, Feb. 8, Johnson had accepted that view and decided he was going to resume bombing at a higher level. To Dean Rusk there was given the not unwelcome task of justifying the decision.

In his press conference of Feb. 9, Rusk asserted that the U.S. could not accept the "unconditional and permanent" cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam which, according to him, the other side was "demanding" as a condition for talks. That statement shut the door on Kosygin who, in the evident hope of sliding around the issue, had not been talking about a "permanent" cessation.

Thereafter Harold Wilson could only play for time. He knew the game was up even before the bombing of North Vietnam was resumed on Feb. 14.

Indeed, he has said that chances for settlement were spoiled by a victory of the hawks in Washington. And he has even cited as the chief hawk Johnson's special adviser for national security affairs, Walt Rostow.

How does Johnson protect himself against his military advisers? The way, I think, is to demonstrate the limitations of what force can do. It is to show that the United States can achieve its very limited objective in Vietnam without steadily expanding the war.

OPINION

Sir Gerald Templar

(the British general who directed the fighting against Communist terrorists in Malaya from 1952 to 1954)

Says:

"I would like to see British soldiers fighting in Vietnam; it is because of political reasons that British troops are not there."

"It is impossible to compare the Vietnam situation with Malaya because there's no parallel."

"The British, for better or worse, were in Malaya for 15 years and established a high-class civil service and police with an efficient white command. The war over there didn't escalate."

"But in Vietnam the French walked out leaving administrative chaos, unparalyzed corruption and a poor police force. The U.S. called in men and money, but even now they are not in administrative control. The title of boss rests with South Vietnamese."

"I feel terribly sorry for the United States which cannot get what it wants done properly. You can't defeat militant communism purely with bullets."

Chinese-Soviet Border Area Explosive Point of Friction

By JOHN BEST From Moscow

One of the most explosive points of friction in the deepening quarrel between the Soviet Union and China is the border between Soviet Central Asia and the northwest Chinese province of Sinkiang.

In recent years, large numbers of Chinese — estimates range into the millions — have been settled in Sinkiang under a crash colonization program instituted by Peking. At the same time, thousands of native people have fled the province to settle on the Soviet side of the wild, ill-defined border.

The Soviets charge that a campaign of persecution is being waged against pro-Soviet elements in Sinkiang. An account in the Moscow newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta — Literary Gazette — gives a revealing glimpse of this increasingly important area of byplay in the Moscow-Peking dispute. The article says the native population of Kazakhstan, Uighurs and Kirgiz is being forcibly assimilated with Chinese — native girls being forced into marriage with newly-arrived Chinese settlers. These are the same peoples that inhabit the Soviet republics of Kazakhstan, Kirgizia and Tadzhikistan, which face Sinkiang along a winding, 1,500-mile border.

Thus there is a highly emotional, blood-drenched ingredient in the boundary situation. There have been reports of Soviet border guards going to the assistance of tribal kinmen trying to get across the boundary and being fired on by Chinese guards who accused them of trespassing on Chinese territory.

There have been other reports of skirmishes resulting from Chinese guards allegedly invading Soviet territory to apprehend a refugee.

Reciprocal charges of border violations have flown back and forth for years.

The account in Literary Gazette tells of deportations to labor camps of intellectuals with pro-Soviet sympathies, and suicides by writers who had fallen into disfavor with authorities.

Literary Gazette tells of an alleged Chinese plan to concoct a "new history" of the native peoples of Sinkiang, quoting Balkash Batin, a former lieutenant-colonel in the Chinese Liberation Army, as its source.

This new history, Batin says, aims to prove that the Kazakhs, Uighurs and Kirgiz are really Chinese and therefore had "a single motherland from the southern tip of China to the Aral Sea."

Batin says the intellectuals and Communists in Sinkiang came out against such "falsification of the facts" and were persecuted as a result.

Morbid Fears Cured

By DR. ALFRED BRYNE, from London

People with a morbid fear of darkness, crowds or closed places are now being rid of phobias by a simple new technique called systematic desensitization.

Two psychiatrists at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London explained that their method is to make the patient relax physically when exposed to the feared situation so that he learns to associate it with tranquility and relaxation instead of anxiety.

In practice, the patient lies on a couch and is slowly given an intravenous injection of an ultra-short-acting sedative until he admits to feeling calm and relaxed. Then, with the hypodermic needle still in the vein, he is encouraged to imagine the sort of things that make him afraid.

The patient must never be allowed to feel anxious during therapeutic sessions, so if he begins to lick his lips, swallow air or confess to even the mildest concern he is given a further injection of the drug and encouraged to think of more tranquil things.

At weekly sessions, three or four aspects of the feared situation are presented after the patient has had a sub-anesthetic dose of the drug.

When 18 patients treated in this way were assessed six months later, 15 were either recovered or much improved, says a report by Dr. D. E. I. Friedman and Dr. J. T. Silverstone.

One woman had been so terrified of cancer that all television and radio programs had to be stopped in her home in case she would inadvertently see or hear the word, but after seven weeks of treatment her fear had gone.

Sorrow Fills Chilled Capital's Final Farewell

The man returned to his post.

Mrs. Vanier appeared to be drawing comfort throughout the long ritual from her daughter, Dr. Therese Vanier, who never left her side.

Later, she boarded the 10-car funeral train with the state mourners, led by Chief Justice Taschereau, the acting governor-general, and Prime Minister Pearson.

More than 2,000 men from the armed services, led by a mounted RCMP troop, marched at slow time in the 1,100-yard procession to the Roman Catholic Basilica of Notre Dame. Another 1,000 troops lined both sides of the route.

A short distance behind the gun carriage a riderless black horse, black boots reversed in the stirrups, pranced nervously. A sergeant of the 8th Canadian Hussars held him in check.

As the cortege was about to move off, the start of a 78-gun salute caused the horse to rear. One of his hoofs clipped a Mountie on the leg. The officer, standing stiffly at the salute, did not move.

The requiem mass at the basilica was in startling contrast to the mourning mood of the procession.

At the request of the Vanier family, special authorization was obtained to adopt dramatic changes in the funeral mass approved by the Vatican Council but used only experimentally in a few Canadian dioceses.

These change the tenor of the mass from one of sorrow to one of joy in the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body. Black vestments give way to creamy white and the slow-tolling bell is replaced by a joyous peal.

For most Roman Catholics who watched it on the CBC's national television network, the mass was thus unique.

It was celebrated jointly by Cardinal Leger, a longtime friend of Gen. Vanier, 10 bishops representing each of the provinces, and Gen. Vanier's son Georges, a Trappist monk from Oka, Que.

The concelebration was another innovation arising from the Vatican Council.

Cardinal Leger told the church audience of nearly 1,200 of Gen. Vanier's unflinching faith in God and confidence in his church.

"It is the whole Canadian family which is in mourning today," he said.

Of the Vanier family he said "So firm is their hope that they have asked us to put on the priestly vestments which signify the joy of the resurrection."

When the Catholic service ended but before the coffin was removed from in front of the altar, prayers were said by three representatives of other Christian faiths who stepped out from the sanctuary.

The three were Rt. Rev. Ernest Reed, Anglican bishop of Ottawa; Rt. Rev. Timothy of Toronto, Greek Orthodox bishop who spoke in Greek, and Rev. Marvin Carson of Trinity United Church in Ottawa, representing the Canadian Council of Churches.

This ecumenical feature was also a family request.

There were only two floral notes in the church — a family spray resting on the coffin and the Queen's wreath of carnations in red and white, the national colors.

As the pallbearers from the Royal 22nd Regiment, Gen. Vanier's proud unit, were easing the coffin from their shoulders at the church exit, the spray slipped from the top. An alert officer took one quick step, caught it inches from the floor and tenderly replaced it on Gen. Vanier's unsheathed military sword.

The governor-general's Trappist son did not leave the church with the cortege but drove back to his monastery.

Among the many state mourners, most of the attention centred on Vice-President Humphrey of the U.S.

Mr. Humphrey flew in from Washington just an hour before the mass began and returned later in the day. He arrived at the church with two carloads of secret service agents. They clustered closely about him for the short walk into the basilica.

A few minutes later Mr. Pearson and his wife walked unaccompanied from a limousine to the church.

Crises as Usual

be sent to the Commons by Monday at the latest.

As of now, there is no settlement between Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp and Minister without Portfolio Walter Gordon on how the Mercantile Bank should be treated in the legislation.

TOUGH AMENDMENT

At a bitter meeting of cabinet nearly two weeks ago, when Mr. Gordon threatened to resign, the cabinet agreed that Mr. Sharp should move an amendment to make it tougher for Mercantile to exist in Canada.

Mr. Pearson commanded secrecy. At all costs, the amendment had to appear to be the work of Mr. Sharp, not something forced upon him by Mr. Gordon.

Leads about the row and the outcome have made it impossible for Mr. Sharp to keep to the original course and not lose face.

NOTHING CHANGED

Mr. Gordon, who flew back to Ottawa from a Jamaica vacation after the deal came unstuck, is insisting that nothing has changed, suggesting that he thinks he is still the victor.

But, according to other sources, everything has changed because Mr. Sharp will not go ahead with the deal.

Prime Minister Pearson will need all his diplomatic skills at today's cabinet meeting.

The original deal called for the government to review, year by year, the five-year exemption to be given First National City Bank, owners of Mercantile, to unload 75 per cent of the bank's shares to Canadians.

In addition, there was agreement that eventually Citibank's shares in Mercantile should be further reduced to 10 per cent to put it on the same level as Canadian banks.

CITIBANK HARDENS

Under the proposed legislation, no Canadian can own more than 10 per cent of shares in a new bank.

The deadlock is complicated by the hardening of the position of Citibank towards the ruckus with Canada.

In a behind-the-scenes deal conducted by Liberal MP, Bryce Mackesey in the executive offices of the Citibank in New York, the U.S. bankers appeared to agree to meeting draft Canadian law and reducing its shares in Mercantile to 25 per cent.

Disclosures of what went on in the cabinet between Mr. Sharp and Mr. Gordon have created the suspicion of a double-cross among the U.S. bankers.

WON'T GET OUT

At Citibank's annual meeting this week, chairman James Rockefeller said the bank had no idea of getting out of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

He predicted that the status quo would be maintained for some time regarding Citibank's $11,000,000 investment in the bank.

Two Churches Nearer Union

LONDON (AP) — The basis for union between the Congregational Church and Presbyterian Church of England has been unanimously agreed upon by a joint committee, officials of both churches have said.

Their proposal for a single body, to be called the Reformed Church, now goes to the respective church assemblies for approval.

Anglicans Help Poor Students

Anglicans in Canada contributed $63,122 to the church's World Mission Fund during the past year. As a result, thousands of students in India and the West Indies will benefit from student centres. Contributions from Canadian Anglicans since the fund was started, in 1964 have reached $2,231,318.

Vancouver Man Admits Forgery

Courtroom Parade

A Vancouver man who pleaded guilty to seven counts of forgery was remanded for sentence Wednesday in central magistrate's court by Magistrate J. A. Byers.

Donald W. MacDonnell pleaded guilty to forging seven $50 American Express cheques made out on a Montreal branch of the company. He admitted a previous record, but the Crown asked for time to verify his former charges.

MacDonnell had passed two cheques in the Bay, two in Eaton's, one in an Esquimalt Safeway store and one in a shopping centre bakery shop in Esquimalt.

RESTITUTION

The arresting officer said he had already made restitution of $160, anticipating the return of an eighth cheque.

He was remanded to March 15 for sentence.

A young man whom Magistrate Byers said started his life of crime at 11 years of age was sentenced to 15 months definite and six months indefinite in jail for forgery.

Harry Marshall Smith of 3000 Tillicum had earlier pleaded guilty to eight counts of forgery and one of attempted forgery, in cases occurring in Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria. His cheque-writing spree had netted $900.

The magistrate said he realized Smith was the product of a broken home and an over-indulgent mother, and had an improper outlook on life.

He said it was apparent Smith needed institutional supervision and care.

"Various court officers have tried for a considerable time to keep you on the straight and narrow," Magistrate Byers said, handing down a sentence of 14 months definite and six months indefinite to Marlo Smart of 1751 Hampshire, for theft.

Smart was charged as the result of the theft of an automobile from Victoria senior high school Feb. 24.

Wendy M. Hübler, 19, of Vancouver, received a suspended sentence of three months for vagrancy, after court learned the Salvation Army had made arrangements for her care.

The young woman pleaded guilty to vagrancy Tuesday after she had been found wandering the streets without means of support.

A Manitoba youth who was released from penitentiary in Manitoba March 1, and was found in Saanich early Sunday morning, was remanded in custody to Thursday for the Salvation Army to make arrangements for his welfare.

Clifford J. Shingoose, 19, of no fixed address, pleaded not guilty to vagrancy and said he had come to B.C. looking for work. He said he was looking for an acquaintance in Saanich when the police apprehended him with five cents in his pocket.

Norman L. Graham, 19, of 899 Craigflower, was fined $35 after he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

Graham was arrested Feb. 12 in Colwood with a partial case of beer in his possession.

William Curlett of 1773 Hornoyd was fined $100 for driving while his licence was under suspension.

He was arrested early March 4 on the Interurban Road near Grange, and admitted his

Soviet Women Up for Air

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Shamefaced mine managers in northeastern Russia were quite surprised when told they still had women working in their underground mines, the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya reported Wednesday.

"What backward people we are," the newspaper quoted the manager as saying. "We'll bring the weaker sex up into the fresh air."

The paper said the government wants to stop women doing heavy labor but the lesson apparently did not sink in deeply with the mine managers.

"They brought out the women. . . . Then the women were entrusted with sledhammers and fixed up with a job, knocking in ties on the railways."

Meanwhile...

British Columbia will conform to an international labor code and not allow women to work underground as mining technicians.

An International Labor Organization code, of which Canada is signatory, severely restricts conditions under which women are allowed to work underground.

It was proposed earlier that women be allowed to work in mines as technicians and computer operators in office or laboratory-like environments.

JOB FORBIDDEN

However, the ILO code forbids all underground activities by women other than students.

Northcott Still Undefeated Faces Toughest Tests Today

HULL, Que. — Ron Northcott's rink from Calgary continued undefeated after seven rounds at the Canadian men's curling championships Wednesday.

The defending world champion Alberta rink swept past Prince Edward Island, 8-2, in the sixth round and then picked up two on the 11th end to defeat the tough Manitoba quartet, 8-6.

Northcott had suffered muscle spasms in his back in the game against the Islanders but saw a doctor and appeared to be all right against Manitoba in the evening.

Memorial Arena Miracle Lifts Leafs Two Places

By JIM TANG

OAKLAND 4, VICTORIA 1

At 10:40 last night the door to the Victoria Maple Leaf office opened slowly and through it came a man wearing a look of stunned pleasure.

"I'll take it, I'll take it, I'll take it," manager Buck Houle kept saying, obviously uncertain whether he had any listeners.

Two minutes later, the door opened again and a fellow who resembled nothing as much as a sleepwalker faced the East and slid silently to his knees. He Winger Lou Jankowski, weakened and underweight because of tooth trouble which has restricted his diet, hadn't been having a particularly good game. Two minutes later he was a hero.

He started his halo-making at 18:40 when he put the puck in from the left edge of the crease after Rob Barlow and Mike LaBalle had combined to give him the chance.

The Leafs changed lines, pulled goalkeeper Al Smith as they got the puck inside the Oakland zone and then lost an argument about where a faceoff should take place.

LOU WAITING Referee Lloyd Gilmour ruled outside the Victoria zone, Smith returned to the ice and stationed himself for another quick exit.

He headed towards the bench as the Leafs dumped the puck back inside the Oakland zone but hadn't made it before a thundering roar told him that his duties were not over.

Milan Marcetta had grabbed the puck and slid a pass towards the Oakland goal. And there was Jankowski, left in on the player switch, up to backhand it past Jack McCartan.

The ice was finally cleared of debris, play was resumed and it didn't take long before Rob Barlow found himself in front of McCartan in close quarters.

BARLOW ENDED IT His first intention was to pass but when a Seal defenceman anticipated the move and slid to the right, Barlow picked the top far corner with a wrist shot and the Leafs had their seventh win in eight games.

But there had been more drama just seconds previously. Smith had felled the dangerous Danny Belisle, in close on a break. And seconds after that got his hand on a drive by Wayne Maxner that appeared ticketed although no save was credited because the goal judge believed it was wide.

And that brings up a point that could be lost in the excitement of the last minutes. Had it not been for the fine play of Smith the Leafs would never have been close enough for any miracle.

For two periods they were outskated and hustled into errors. They passed wildly, got out of position and were continually being hemmed inside their own zone.

They appeared to rally a bit here and there but each time they seemed on their way out of it, they lapsed again. But Smith came up with four or five tremendous stops to never allow the margin past two goals, and that wasn't enough when the Leafs finally snapped out of it.

Oh, yes, a third man followed Mario into the Leaf office. He was tall, dark and glowering.

"Just 80 seconds left," he mumbled, repeating a snatch of conversation, and turned and walked out.

His name was Rudy Pilous, and it would be no great surprise if some Leafs wind up elsewhere in short order. Like in Victoria.

finally opened his eyes but only when he read confirmation on watching faces was he able to speak through a slow unbelieving grin.

It was coach Frank Marfo, still in a state of shock after watching the Leafs put on the most spectacular finish seen here in this Western Hockey League season.

It came after 58 minutes of stuttering Victoria play which had left most fans wondering how their club was as close as 2-4.

Scores of the 2,398 fans who had started the game had left Memorial Arena when the Leafs drove the die-hards into a frenzy with their implausible finish.

PROVED OLD ADAGE At 18:39 of the third period it looked as if all of them might as well have gone home after two periods. At 19:23 it was 4-4 and at 1:49 of the overtime period the Leafs had leapfrogged over two clubs into the Western Hockey League's fourth playoff spot.

It was a sequence of events that proved again that truth is stranger than fiction.

Island Cagers In Tourney Wins

VANCOUVER — Oak Bay and Alberni chalked up opening round victories in the B.C. high school boys' basketball championships, Wednesday at UBC.

Oak Bay came up with a solid team effort to defeat Trail, 43-24. Dave Morgan scored 10 points for Bays followed by Don Burrows, Dave Wirtanen and Bill McCormick, each with nine, Paul Baines four and Dave Wallace two.

Mike Ward scored 14 points for the losers.

ALBERNI SCORES UPSET Alberni came up with a minor upset by defeating Kamloops, 46-37, behind Dan Bowman's 14 points. Brock Hilliard added 11 points while Ken Sander, Larry Ferster and Ken Waugh each had seven points.

David Thompson of Vancouver tripped Chemsalus Timberme, 45-43, in the last game of the opening round of the B.C. high school boys' basketball championships.

Lord Byng of Vancouver came up with the biggest upset of the opening day by scoring the winning basket in the last minute of play to defeat North Surrey, 44-43.

North Vancouver Norsemen also pulled a minor upset by whipping Prince George, 65-40.

In other first round games, Abbotsford dumped Kitimat, 63-41, Vancouver College defeated Queen Elizabeth Royals, 51-38, and Delbrook swamped Salmon Arm, 70-41.

U.S. Shuttle Team Told Play or Else

TORONTO (CP)—A "play or else" ultimatum went out from the Canadian Badminton Association Wednesday to its United States counterpart.

Don Mackie, president of the CBA, said the U.S. body has requested a postponement of the final round of Thomas Cup competition, scheduled for March 17-18 in San Diego on the grounds that "they can't find proper facilities to play the match."

Mackie said Stu Bernard of Calgary, chairman of arrangements for the Thomas Cup, offered the U.S. Badminton Association facilities at the Glenora club in Calgary with the suggestion that if the U.S. can't compete on the prescribed date they forfeit the match.

BEAT MEXICO Canada advanced in the final round of the North American zone by defeating Mexico in Mexico City 9-0. The U.S. defeated Jamaica to meet Canada.

Winner of the North American zone will play the winner of the Asian zone in the Thomas Cup competition, the highest Cup competition in the last minute of world badminton.

"The U.S. hasn't even named its team yet," Mackie said.

"This is something that should be done at least 10 days ahead of the tournament. Ours has been named for some time."

Chualvo Ninth In Heavy List

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Joe Frazier of Philadelphia, No. 5 heavyweight contender, and Rocky Marciano of Jersey City, ranked second in the heavyweight division, were named Wednesday as co-boxers of the month for February by the World Boxing Association.

Both fighters scored sixth round knockouts in important February bouts: Frazier over Doug Jones of New York, ranked 10th, and Frazier over Horacio Accavallo of Argentina in a non-title match.

George Chuvalo of Toronto was ranked ninth in the heavyweight division.

Mount Douglas Wins Rugby Classic

By BRIAN DOHERTY

Mount Douglas High School's Mountaineers played like hillbillies but still managed to win the Howard Russell Trophy for the first time Wednesday.

Parlaying a 3-0 halftime lead over Oak Bay into a 6-3 victory, Mount Douglas sailed away the trophy on a freezing day at Carnarvon Park.

Oak Bay hustled and hustled

Mount Douglas throughout and enjoyed a territorial edge but never had the finish to score a try.

The Mountaineers were weakened by the absence of star centre Rod Fiddick who was nursing a shoulder injury.

KICK AND CLAP

Both teams played kick and clap rugby. That's where the forwards battle each other for the ball at the cost of bruised shins and cauliflower ears so the backs can show their form.

The backs then kick for touch the moment the ball comes clear, the crowd claps, and the forward battle begins again. It's not attractive rugby but the day didn't call for much more.

Oak Bay had a smart halfback in Ken Sutton and he used the clearing kick most effectively although he never received much protection from his forwards.

DISCARDED RUNNING

Still both teams were guilty of putting their boots to the ball instead of putting the boots into the ground and running the ball when the defences were open.

Mount Douglas centres Jim Temple and John Howe were the hardest runners on the field and halfback Daryl Noullette had a solid game after being wild with his early passes.

Mount Douglas' first try came from a well placed punt by winger Tom Carson and some quick thinking. It was Carson's throw-in after a 60-yard punt and he threw a short one to flanker Al McDonald who had circled around to the front of the lineout.

McDonald crashed over in the corner before Oak Bay was aware what was going on.

AGAINST FLOW
The try came against the flow of play and Oak Bay again carried its attack to Mount Douglas territory but was unable to score.

Mount Douglas, undefeated this season, put more into its work in the second half and got some fiery forward work from McDonald, Bill Walton and Ted Lister.

The Mountaineers moved the ball around more and forced Oak Bay into errors and hurried kicks. It was a kick from fullback Gerry Horne, moved into the centre during the game, that brought Mount Douglas' second try.

WILD KICK
Horne kicked the ball straight into the arms of Mount Douglas wing Jack Clerkson who ran straight at the line. When he was tackled, he led the ball to Howe who made ground before sending Noullette over in the corner.

That try sent the Mountaineers supporters into wild cheering and Oak Bay into pressure rugby. The reward was a good penalty goal by Horne seven minutes from the end.

Mount Douglas tightened its defences until the final whistle went and then triumphantly carried the Russell Trophy to the hills.

DATING GAME
One interesting sidelight to the game came when an Oak Bay player used the time taken to retrieve the ball for the many lineouts to make his arrangements for a date Saturday night.

His coach was on the other sideline.

Teams:

Royals Win Semi-Finals

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—New Westminster Royals downed Trail Junior Smoke Eaters 5-3 in overtime Tuesday night to win the best-of-five B.C. junior hockey semi-final series three games straight.

New Westminster, which took the first two games 6-1 and 10-1, will meet the winner of the Kelowna-Penticton Okanagan series for the junior championship.

Minor Foul-Up Causes Delay In Island Open Golf Tourney

The Island Open golf tournament has been delayed a week by an unexpected announcement Wednesday morning by the Victoria Golf Club that it won't hold the qualifying round on Easter Sunday.

John Carlow, chairman of the Victoria District Golf Committee, said he didn't know the reason for the cancellation except that he thought it was "club policy."

He said the dates for the Open were made at the committee's annual meeting Feb. 16 and the elected representative of the Victoria club did not attend.

NO REPRESENTATIVE

The representative was telephoned and the meeting held up for 30 minutes awaiting his arrival. When he did not show, the meeting proceeded and the dates were scheduled.

It is believed the Victoria club did not want the qualifying round Easter Sunday because it would affect other arrangements made for that day. The qualifying round will be held April 2 at the Victoria club and will end June 7 at Colwood.

Mr. Carlow said the delay would not affect the rest of the season's schedule.

"A check of the clubs in the area showed there is nothing of a great nature on June 7,"

Ottawa to Quebec

Train Rolls Back Through History

QUEBEC (CP) — The Vanier funeral train rolled back through centuries of Canadian history Wednesday as it bore the body of the late Governor-General home to Quebec.

From Ottawa's ultra-modern station, officially opened last year, the train sped easily through the flat-lower Ottawa valley and into the metropolis of Montreal. After a 20-minute pause it slipped along the south shore of the St. Lawrence and as dusk fell, into the cradle of French culture in Canada.

There were marks of homage and respect to the late Gen. (George P.) Vanier everywhere along the way, from a track-side worker donning his dilly cap to a group of old soldiers at St. Bruno, Que., standing at the salute with their beloved flags draped in respect.

QUEEN'S WREATH

Aboard, the body of the 19th Governor-General of Canada rode in its flag-draped coffin on top of a high plain black bier in a baggage car fitted out as a funeral coach. The walls were draped in black crepe, a huge bouquet of red roses standing out vividly against it.

The funeral coach and nine cars, pulled by a three-unit diesel, eased over a bridge spanning the turbulent Ottawa-St. Lawrence River waters and into Ste. Anne de Bellevue—storing among generations of Canadians who learned in primary school the words: "Row, brother row; The stream runs fast . . ."

Successor Canada's Choice

OTTAWA (CP)—What is the procedure for appointing a successor to George P. Vanier as governor-general of Canada?

Since the governor-general is the Queen's representative in Canada, officially he is named by her.

But the task of making the selection and recommending a choice to the Queen rests with the prime minister of Canada.

Some authorities suggest there is likely a preliminary stage at which the prime minister makes his choice known informally to the monarch will not be in the position of making an appointment in which she may not personally concur.

ONLY SINCE 1926

It is only since the Imperial Conference of 1926 that Canada has had the way on who becomes governor-general.

Before that the sovereign made the appointment on the advice of the British colonial secretary, with the approval of the British prime minister.

What factors are likely to influence the prime minister in consideration of a choice?

WILL CONTINUE

Since 1952, Canada has had a native Canadian as governor-general and it is generally assumed this practice will continue.

Vincent Massey and Gen. Vanier served with such distinction that any misgivings Canadians may have had about a native-born choice seem to have evaporated.

The next appointee seems likely to be an English-speaking Canadian, in line with the pattern set by the first two appointments.

But it seems more likely he will be bilingual, like Mr. Massey and Gen. Vanier.

On the basis of experience in the last 15 years, what sort of career would be most likely to lead to the vice-regal post?

The answer is: Public service.

The one thing Mr. Massey and Gen. Vanier had in common was a record of devoted and outstanding public service.

POLITICS, DIPLOMACY
Mr. Massey, a man of wealth, came by the political road. Not successful in the election field, he gave notable service to the Liberal party as its national president.

His appointments to diplomatic posts in Washington and in London had a political basis, like many such appointments before and since.

Gen. Vanier became virtually a full-time public servant after outstanding army service in the First World War. He continued in service of a military nature after the war and then became a career diplomat.

When there was talk before Mr. Massey's appointment in 1952 that a Canadian might be named governor-general for the first time, he seemed an obvious choice.

Apollo Date Delayed

HOUSTON (UPI) — Problems with the Apollo 17 spacecraft could delay its maiden flight sometime this summer instead of the scheduled launch in May, NASA officials said today.

Dr. Joseph Shea, Apollo program manager, said the date for the first model of the spacecraft designed to set two men on the moon and then return them, is uncertain.

Drug Haul Tops Ton

HONG KONG (AP) — Police have seized more than a ton of raw opium and 200 pounds of raw morphine worth $30,000,000 in illegal markets, in two waterfront raids, the Hong Kong narcotics bureau has announced.

McKinley Climbers Returning from Peak

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP) — Three Anchorage climbers reported Wednesday they reached the top of 20,320-foot Mount McKinley a week ago. It was the first time the mountain, highest in North America, had been scaled in the winter.

A U.S. Air Force plane dropped a radio to the climbers at about the 14,000-foot level of the mountain. They sent this message: "Pass the word along that we made the summit on the first of March at 7 p.m."

The final assault team was composed of Art Davidson, 22, Dave Johnston, 24, and Ray Genet, 35.

They were part of an eight-man team which set out a month ago on the expedition. One of the original members of the party, French-born Jacques Babin, 36, of Anchorage, was killed on the second day of the climb.

Two other members of the party — Greg Blomberg, 25, Denver, Colo., and John Edwards, 35, of Cleveland, Ohio — are at the team's base camp at the 8,200-foot level. A U.S. army helicopter landed there Wednesday, but the men declined evacuation.

The other two members — Dr. George Wichman, 39, and Shiro Nishimae, 31, both of Anchorage — were last reported at about the 10,000-foot level there.

Funeral 'Celebrated'

By A. H. MURPHY
The transfer of Gorge Park to Saanich last year and the impending transfer of the 700-acre Beaver-Elk Lake complex to the regional board of the capital district sounded the death knell for the committee which was founded in 1917.

It still has Mount Douglas Park under its wing, but, as city parks committee chairman Ald. Robert Baird said Wednesday, this too will probably come under regional control within a year.

The beaches and parks committee will then have run out of horses and parks. Several decisions which the committee would normally make were shifted to Saanich council Wednesday when it was agreed that the northern municipality would take over maintenance of the park on March 15.

An agreement was recently worked out between Victoria and Saanich, with the approval of the regional board, that the Elk-Beaver parkland would be taken over by the regional district upon payment to Victoria of $250,000 over a period of 10 years.

Under the terms of the pact, Saanich will take over maintenance of the park under the policy-making of the regional board.

If Mount Douglas Park is turned over to the region, Ald. Baird indicated Wednesday, it will mean that the city has lost ownership of the last parkland outside its own borders.

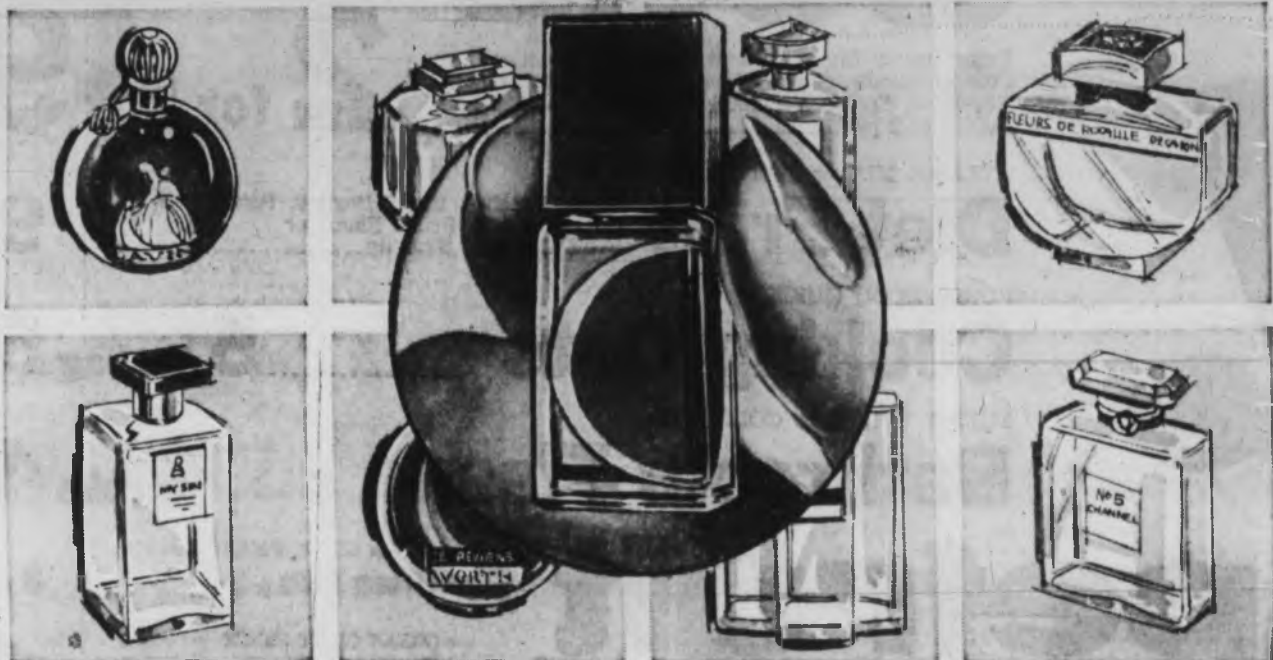

Saanich and Victoria got together over a problem of taxation in 1917, according to a report given members of the committee Wednesday by city parks administrator Herbert Warren, and four years later a joint administration was set up. Its jurisdictions included parks.

At that time the population of Victoria was 38,727, and that of Saanich 10,534.

Honeymoon Skiing Trip

Newlyweds to Make Home in Vancouver

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Muriel Rhoule are presently on a honeymoon skiing trip to Palm Springs, Colorado and New Mexico.

White gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums decorated St. Michael's and All Angels Church when Rev. W. E. Greenhagh heard vows exchanged between Sandra Anne Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Turner, 6021 Santa Clara Avenue, and the son of Mrs. Muriel Dreyer, 3235 Keats Street. Wedding music by Purcell was played by organist, Ian Galliford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant full-length gown of satin that was fashioned with a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves, enhanced with silk ribbon. A dainty bow was accent for the belted skirt that opened from the fitted bodice. Seed pearls edged the four-tiered bouffant veil of silk illusion that misted from a pearl tara. Only jewelry was a pearl drop necklace. A green cymbidium orchid centred her bouquet of white phalaenopsis, stephanotis and ivy.

The bride's attendants wore gowns styled in similar fashion but in street length.

Maid of honor Miss Shirley Terry had a gown of yellow lace over peau d'elephant, completing her ensemble with a petalled headpiece of toning peau d'elephant and tulle and a cascade bouquet containing white tulips, yellow freesia and ivy. A similar outfit in green was the choice of junior bridesmaid Miss Teresa Turner, the bride's sister. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow

Mrs. Archer Opens Tea

GANGES B.C. — The Salt Spring Island Guide and Brownsie annual Spring tea and bake sale was held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall Saturday. The sale was opened by the president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 92, Mrs. C. W. Archer.

The Brownsies made the attractive centre piece for the tea table. They were also in charge of the candy stall. The Guides had a thrift and toy stall.

The door prizes were won by Mrs. G. H. Holmes and Mrs. R. C. Hill.

Legion LA

Oldest Member Cuts Cake

CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. — The Ladies Auxiliary to Branch No. 137, Royal Canadian Legion, observed its 28th anniversary on March 4 with a smorgasbord supper and dance.

President Ethel Cox welcomed more than 100 members and their husbands and guests. Grace was said by Legion Padre Canon T. D. Proctor. Jack Phillips was master of ceremonies and introduced legion president, Art Harling, who extended greetings to the ladies, and Fred Wood, who gave a brief resume of the Auxiliary's history.

To Mrs. Ina Pringle, oldest member, went the honor of cutting the birthday cake, decorated with the auxiliary crest.

The Legion Auxiliary, which is one of the oldest organizations in Campbell River, was formed on March 9, 1939. The first meetings were held at the home of the late Mrs. Percy Wood until the Legion Hall was built.

During the organization's infancy, the handful of women faced many difficulties in keeping the auxiliary going, but they persevered, and through the years have assisted their branch and the community in many ways. The weekly visits to the local hospital have become an established custom. The annual Burns' suppers have become an accepted art of the community's social calendar and so has the annual supper and social evening put on for all the First World War veterans in the district and their wives. The members have also taken an active part, through the years, in the CRRA presentation of B'n'P pieces concerts.

Today, membership numbers more than 70. Many of the original members have since passed on but the newcomers who have taken their places are keeping up the traditions they established.

The regular meeting of the Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE was held recently at the home of Mrs. G. C. Baker. Mrs. Walter W. Walsh presided.

Mrs. T. B. Lumsden was elected educational secretary and the following conveners were also elected: Immigration and citizenship, Mrs. Wm. Hudson; flowers and cards, Mrs. E. B. Norton; telephone, Mrs. W. Patterson; Mrs. G. C. Henderson, Mrs. C. Nash and Mrs. E. M. Alexander.

A bursary of $100 is to be presented to a graduate nurse of the Royal Jubilee Hospital for proficiency in bedside nursing, during the graduation exercises.

Mrs. J. R. McIntosh was proposed as a new member and welcomed at the tea hour.

The next meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. T. B. Lumsden March 13 at 1:30 p.m.

ESQUIMALT IODE. Esquimalt Chapter IODE will meet in Eaton's board room on Monday, March 13, at 1 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served.

TEA MARCH 18. The Pas-A-Pas Group of First United Church will hold a St. Patrick's Day tea on Saturday, March 18 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the social suite of the church.

The bride's going-away outfit was a two-piece suit in muted maroon and navy checks, navy accessories and cymbidium orchid in a pale mauve shade. The newweds will make their home in Vancouver.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who needs somebody to stick up for me. I hope it will be you. My brother Roy is six years old. He is so mean nobody can tell what he will do next.

When President Kennedy was killed I made a scrap book of all the things I could find about him. I kept it up to date and everyone said it was a very wonderful book. I say WAS because Roy ripped the book to pieces yesterday. When I came home from school and saw what he had done, I was so mad I cried. Mom said she will punish Roy at the right time. Well, I know she will never punish him because she has never punished him yet. He gets away with murder around here.

Nothing will put my back back together again so there is no point in crying anymore, but I wish you would say something in your column about kids who do terrible things and nobody does anything about it. Thank you. —SISTER WHO IS STILL CRYING

Dear Sister: While you are at it, shed a few tears for Roy, because he is the one who will be the big loser. Children who grow up without discipline are a problem to society, their families and themselves. Reform school and prisons are filled with people who did as

Dear Ann Landers: I can't for the life of me understand why common ordinary housewives write to you and criticize your advice.

People ask for your opinion because they have faith in you. I am sure most people who write have read your writing for years and they feel you can help them. It always burns me up when some dumb bunny from Boise or Yonkers or Dubuque writes in and thinks her ideas are better than yours.

Please print this letter and tell them their two-bit views don't mean anything and to save the stamp.—K.K.

Dear K.K.: Here's your letter but I don't agree with you. I have learned a lot from those "dumb bunnies" from Boise and Yonkers and Dubuque. I hope they never stop writing.

Doctor Describes Role of Hospital

Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg described the new role of hospitals in the community today when he addressed the Ladies Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital at a recent meeting.

He told the members that today's hospitals are more complicated than in the past and now have as many as 40 different departments.

The speaker pointed out the auxiliary forms a link with the community. He then directed the members' attention to the new units to be increased, including coronary, nurseries, burns unit and intensive care unit.

The auxiliary's first donation this quarter year was a portable public address system and a hair dryer as a memorial to Mrs. E. E. Girard. The dryer will be put in the maternity ward.

Dr. Van Tilburg announced the storage space and area for gift shop, to be manned by auxiliary members, will be included in proposed hospital renovation plans.

Telephone committee will be soon telephoning invitations to the spring bridge luncheon on March 29. Committee members are Mrs. E. Barraud, Mrs. W. Shipley, Mrs. M. Addison, Mrs. J. Fiddess, Mrs. S. A. Steele, Mrs. H. O'Neill, Mrs. G. Bowers, Mrs. T. C. Rogers, Mrs. A. Cowden, Mrs. P. W. Semenchuk, Mrs. R. Atkinson, Mrs. E. Michaux, Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs.

Centennial Quilt-Making Competition

Closing date for the Centennial quilt-making competition has been extended to June 30, the women's activities sub-committee of the Provincial Centennial Committee announced today.

Many requests for the extension have been received from prospective entrants, who are competing for cash prizes totaling $1,500.

Entry forms, together with rules and score sheets are available on request from local Centennial committees.

Rules call for an applique quilt, one on which the design is imposed and sewn on the hand-quilted quilt.

The design is to be of a Centennial or historical theme relative to district, province of British Columbia, or Canada.

Prizes will be awarded in 17 provincial districts. Three winners from each district will be judged for the top awards of $500, $200 and $100 at the Pacific National Exhibition at Vancouver in 1967. The winning quilt will become the property of the Provincial Centennial Committee, and will be displayed in the Provincial Archives and Museum at Victoria.

Frantic Father Losing Daughter, Too

'Welcome' Death Takes Aged Boy

ADAMSVILLE, N.B. (CP)—Three weeks ago Gerard Gallant looked at his 11-year-old son and said: "I think death is compassionate if it comes now."

"I've been facing his death for three years. I want him to live, but not under the hard conditions of suffering that I know he'll always have."

The fatal disease was not polio or leukemia which strikes many children, but progeria—a rare disease where only a half-dozen known cases in the world. Rickey Gallant died Wednesday while his father frantically tried to take him to hospital 35 miles north in Chatham.

Progeria gives the victim the physical characteristics of an old person. In Rickey's case, he looked 85.

The boy's eyesight was nearly gone and he was deaf in one ear. He had little hair on his head and he could not walk. He weighed less than 20 pounds.

Rickey was taken in serious condition to hospital Feb. 16 after he stopped eating. He responded to intravenous and later liquid feeding and returned home Tuesday.

Mr. Gallant said the disease—commonly called premature aging—first appeared when the boy was 21 months old. But the symptoms showed up immediately in their daughter Norma, now eight years old.

Norma has never walked and her health is rapidly deteriorating. Last summer she weighed 35 pounds and now is down to 24.

Another child, 14-year-old Anthony, is a normal, healthy boy in Grade 8 who likes to play hockey.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallant—he is 37 and she is 34—have lost two other children at birth, one four years ago and another last June.

"We still want more children," said Mrs. Gallant. "My doctor has never discouraged me from becoming pregnant."

Rickey's funeral is expected to be held at the Roman Catholic church here Friday.

Mr. Gallant said he has spent more than $30,000 in fees to more than 40 doctors and several hospitals trying to have the children cured.

Life Begins at 100—for Some

MOSCOW — It was a great day for the aged.

For example, Tass news agency reported Halakshim Orudzheva, 130, and his wife Amina, 114, celebrated their double-golden 100th wedding anniversary in the southern mountain village of Ilkhychi.

The quick and energetic wife said: "Under old law, he could have had several wives but I have been his only wife for 100 years." The tall, lean and staid husband said: "It is a wonderful century I have lived with my wife."

Crabb

Leary

CHICHESTER, England — Police are investigating whether a skull washed ashore near here might be that of British frogman Cmdr. Lionel Crabb who disappeared in 1956 while the Russian cruiser Orduzhnikova lay in Portsmouth harbor, 10 miles away.

ELGIN, Scotland — Gordon MacLeod, 100, said Prince Charles, 18, has won the major role of the pirate king in a production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance.

SEATTLE — Dr. Timothy Leary, advocate of the drug LSD, filed a claim for $13,500 damages against the City of Seattle for denying him use of the Seattle Opera House for a speaking engagement. Leary said he "suffered a loss of reasonable profits" by being forced into a smaller hall.

MOSCOW — Red Guards have broken the hands of Liu Shi-kun, a Chinese pianist who placed second to Van Cliburn in the 1958 Tchaikovsky competition, the newspaper Soviet Culture says.

LIEGE, Belgium — Italian tycoon Count Domenico Agusta of Milan has asked a Belgian court to block the planned marriage today of his beautiful daughter Giovanna, 21, to Brazilian Negro soccer star Jose Gama, 24. He took the action after a four-year campaign of persuasion failed.

owner was not Canadian and he did accept Canadian money at par.

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Canadian Trade Minister Robert Winters has conferred with Scientific Affairs Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg about the possibility of a long-term agreement to deliver uranium to West Germany.

VALLEFIELD, Que. — George Hees, seeking the national leadership of the Conservative party, said business men elsewhere in Canada "would be well advised to learn French if they want to make sales in Quebec."

MUNICH — West German Dr. Felicitas Hammer, in a study on the effects of corporal punishment, says beating a child on the backside can lead to brain damage. The thrashings can dislodge tiny fatty particles which may later cause blood to clot in the brain.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — Tourist Sam Shaw from Vancouver felt he had to check when he saw this sign in a men's clothing store window: "In honor of centennial year, Canadian money will be accepted at par." Shaw said the NEW YORK — New Jersey real estate operator Philip Levin, largest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stockholder, lost his proxy fight to win control of the firm by unseating the management headed by president Robert O'Brien. The management slate of directors was elected over Levin's ticket.

TORONTO — Walter Bowles, 78, dean of Canada's radio broadcasters, died in hospital after a lengthy illness. He was an early-morning broadcaster with the CBC for more than 30 years, making his last broadcast in September, 1966.

LONDON, Ont. — Eskimos are the greatest people in the world, says retired RCMP Superintendent William Fraser, who spent most of his 35-year career in the Arctic. He said: "I have yet to see an Eskimo steal, beg, slander anyone or fail to do what he was asked. And they are the most devoted family group I have ever seen."

City Marks Debate

The 100th anniversary of the debate which led a year later to Victoria being proclaimed the capital of the province will be marked at City Hall on March 29.

Invitations have been sent for an evening ceremony at which an exhibition, reminiscent of the period, will be on display. Included will be photographs and documents pertaining to some of the principal participants in the historic event.

Ainslie J. Helmcken, whose grandfather, Dr. J. S. Helmcken, played a leading role in the debate, will give a short lecture at the City Hall event.

The city's guest list leads off with known descendants of those concerned with the events of 1857. Following the lecture refreshments will be served.

Langford

Public Can Help

Langford's volunteer ambulance men are starting a campaign this weekend for a new ambulance to service their 120-square-mile area. Fire Chief Allan LeQueane said Wednesday.

The ambulance service, which ranges the Malahat as far north as Bamerton, is operated by Langford's volunteer firemen but the fire district does not provide money for ambulances.

COST $12,000

The proposed new vehicle will replace a 1961 Oldsmobile bought in 1964. It will cost $12,000.

Families in the district may contribute by taking subscriptions at $2 each. They will be valid for one year after the new ambulance goes into service and will provide coverage for only $2 a run instead of much higher rates.

WHILE IN AREA

Mr. LeQueane said anyone who travels the area could take out a subscription for coverage while in the area.

"You never know who's going to be in an accident on the Malahat," Mr. LeQueane said.

If the $2 subscription plan is successful, he said, a $5 membership plan would be considered to provide free ambulance runs.

Five Children Die in Fire

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Five small boys and their sister died in a fire that destroyed their four-room frame home. Police said their parents were visiting neighbors in the same block of a housing development. The victims, ranging in age from 3 to 10, were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Selman Watford.

THE COFFEE OF GOOD TASTE

IN CANADA'S MOST EXCITING YEAR

Canada welcomes the world to its 100th birthday party! And while gaiety and pageantry color the land, people from coast to coast are extending hospitality to visitors and neighbors alike. In so many homes, the welcome will take the form of a friendly and heartwarming cup of Nabob coffee. As Canadian as the maple leaf, Nabob coffee reflects the quality and good taste that Canadians have always cherished in fine products for their homes.

Incidents Plague U.S. Airline

Bullet-Waster Wings Plane

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A man out target-shooting fired a bullet which ripped into a Lake Central Airlines plane Tuesday night near Terre Haute, Ind., the FBI said Wednesday.

FBI agents said the man told them he fired a shot out a window of his car into the air from his .222 rifle to "get rid of my last bullet" before he and a companion went home.

NO PROSECUTION

Agents said the man came forward voluntarily and told his story. He was not identified.

The U.S. attorney's office said it did not plan to prosecute him.

Doom Doll, Then Death

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — First came the doom doll, pierced with pins and "hexed" in Mexico.

It arrived in a package that police opened because George Ash's estranged wife thought it might be a bomb.

B.C. Singer Charged In Murder

FULLERTON, Calif. (CP) — A charge of murder was filed Tuesday against a former Vancouver folk singer in connection with the stabbing death of secretary Gloria Dawn Collins of Port Moody while she visited California.

William Thomas Blakeman, 25, moved from Vancouver to the U.S. last October. He was once a member of a Vancouver folk singing quartet called the Columbians.

Blakeman was charged with killing Miss Collins, 27, with malice aforethought. She was the daughter of Vancouver jazz musician Ted Collins.

Then the 42-year-old Ash himself came back from California—to find his former wife, 30-year-old Roselyn, divorced and remarried.

Escambia County officers said Ash drove here Tuesday and fired five pistol shots into the lock of his former wife's trailer home. She returned the fire with a volley through the door. Ash ducked, reloaded and charged again.

Deputies found the woman's body in a bathtub with four bullet wounds in the head and one in the shoulder.

Ash lay on the floor with two bullets in his chest. Officers said he feebly pointed his gun at them but they stepped on his gun hand and found the weapon empty. Ash was dead on arrival at hospital.

Medical Examiner Aldrich Nordrup said Ash killed both his former wife and himself.

Roselyn's second husband, Nick Perling, was at work when the couple exchanged a total of 23 shots.

U.S. Group

Young Band Will Play

A group of 40 teen-agers from Auburn, Wash., will give three programs of sacred band music in Victoria and Sidney this week.

The students, who attend Auburn Academy, will perform in Victoria Seventh-day Adventist Church at 963 Pandora at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The second concert will be given at the Seventh-day Adventist Church on Rest Haven Drive, Sidney, at 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

The final concert will be given at North Saanich high school, Rest Haven Drive and McDonald Park Road, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The academy's director of music, F. L. Quinn, will lead the band. There is no admission charge.

Auburn Academy is one of 634 colleges and academies operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church with an enrolment of about 7,500 students.

Holster-Toting Groom Given Gun by Father

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — John Wesley Williams Jr., the 17-year-old bridegroom accused of the execution-style slayings of two teen-age boys, paraded bravely with a gun in a shoulder holster the night before the killings, a witness testified Wednesday.

Other witnesses, including Williams' own father, testified at the youth's preliminary hearing that he had been given a .22 calibre revolver last Wednesday.

State crime laboratory experts were quoted as saying such a gun could have killed the two boys Thursday night. But police have been unable to find the weapon in order to match it with the slugs taken from the boys' bodies.

CHARGED IN KILLINGS

Williams, a high school dropout who took a 16-year-old bride only last month, is charged with lining up two 14-year-old cousins, Ronald Johnson and Wayne Mullenders, in a park shelter house and killing both of them. The boys were shot first in the back of their heads and then in their abdomens in execution style, officials said.

At the close of the hearing, Williams was bound over to the grand jury and ordered held without bond.

BULGE IN JACKET

Eugene Williams, 16, a friend of the accused youth, said he saw him Wednesday night at an American Legion post showing off a revolver in a shoulder holster underneath his jacket.

"Johnny said ... he wouldn't mess with anyone but if anyone tried to mess with him he was going to get him," Eugene Williams said.

The witness also testified he saw John Williams Thursday night less than 10 minutes after the shootings were reported, in an alley behind Big Mamma's restaurant. The restaurant is located about a mile from the park where the boys were slain.

Eugene Williams said he saw no gun then, but that there was a bulge in John Williams' jacket which could have been caused Wednesday at a discount store, he said he gave the box containing the gun to his own Winnebago County deputy sheriff and had not seen the weapon since the youth took it into the family home.

Powell Sues House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adam Clayton Powell sued the U.S. House of Representatives Wednesday for the right to take his seat for a 12th term as the Democrat from Harlem.

His lawyers filed suit in U.S. district court asking creation of a special, three-judge federal panel to restrain the House from refusing him admission and to hear his claim that he meets the constitutional requirements for membership — age, U.S. citizenship and residency.

OTHER GROUNDS

Powell's brief said the House violated the constitution a week ago in refusing to seat him on other grounds — notably on the basis of charges that he misused public funds as chairman of the House education and labor committee.

His lawyers accused the House of "depriving the Negro electors of their choice of a representative to sit in the House."

Negroes and other non-white voters in Powell's district are "being subjected to vestiges of slavery and involuntary servitude" in violation of the 13th amendment, they said.

Ejection Seats Changed

BONN (Reuters) — American-made ejection seats in West Germany's accident-prone fleet of Lockheed Starfighter jets will be replaced with British seats, the defence ministry announced Wednesday. Luftwaffe staff officers urged adoption of the British seat — manufactured by the Martin Baker Co. — following the deaths of 37 pilots in 65 crashes since the American-designed Starfighters went into service in 1961.

Teamster Revolt Begins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A move has started throughout the U.S. to oust Frank Fitzsimmons, the successor to James Hoffa as head of the Teamsters Union, according to Jack Gassett, chairman of a rank-and-file "Committee to Return Rights to Teamsters."

Sleep Cab Local 180 here reported Wednesday it has collected 7,000 signatures on a petition for the ouster of Fitzsimmons.

WANT TO DECIDE

Gassett said the petition was being circulated nationwide "because we, the members, want to decide who shall run the union."

Delegates to the union convention last July in Miami Beach voted solidly for the union's executive vice-president, Fitzsimmons, to succeed Hoffa as president if needed.

Hoffa Tuesday began an eight-year term for jury tampering.

GOOD FORCE

"We believe the Teamsters Union is a good and powerful labor force but we believe our union is not being run for the most good of the most members," the petition read.

"We do not want Hoffa's handpicked man, Fitzsimmons, to run this union," Gassett said. He added the petitions "will go to court" if necessary to "win a true membership vote on all things concerning our livelihood and our union."

Plane Crash Kills Seven On Bridge

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters) — A chartered airliner cut a swathe of death through trucks and a rickshaw when it plunged on to a bridge seconds after taking off from a civil airport here today, killing 11 persons.

Four of the aircraft's crew members and seven persons travelling in vehicles on the road, including the driver and passenger of the rickshaw, were reported killed.

Two crew members were taken to hospital.

Mind's Eye 'Sees' Politicians

TORONTO (CP) — In the "eyes" of politician Edward Dunlop, 48, who lost his eyesight during the Second World War, the blind have a totally different concept of Canada's political leaders.

Mr. Dunlop is the Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto Forest Hill. Three secretaries read to him for many hours each day so he can keep up with the provincial and national developments.

His mind's-eye picture of politicians may be inaccurate, he said in an interview. But he considers his affliction has sharpened his other senses.

POOR ORATOR

To him, John Diefenbaker, former prime minister and his national party leader, is a spare, wispy, short man with a thin, sharp-featured face. He regards Mr. Diefenbaker as a poor orator with a monotonous speaking delivery that went out of style in the last century.

Prime Minister Pearson appears to him as a dishevelled man because he speaks "in a disorganized way."

Mr. Dunlop likes the "clear, concise, decisive diction" of Finance Minister Sharp and the "aggressive oratory" of John Turner of Montreal, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet.

Walter Gordon, former finance minister and now a minister without portfolio, comes through as a "nice, genuine fellow" and a "better-than-average orator." But Defence Minister Hellyer speaks like someone "opinionated and inflexible" which handicapped him as a leader.

Mr. Dunlop declined to give an impression of George Hees, former trade minister and a candidate in the national Conservative leadership race. Mr. Hees is his brother-in-law.

The speaking voice of Ontario Premier John Roberts is gravelly and irritating, says Mr. Dunlop. But the premier's wisdom, warmth and authority comes through despite it.

FINEST SPEAKER

He said Liberal Farquhar Oliver, dean of the Ontario legislature, is the finest speaker he has ever heard anywhere. "Oliver is a great orator of the old school. His voice is firm and it flows evenly and confidently."

He classes another Liberal,

Nationalists Threats In U.K. Vote Today

LONDON (CP) — Voters go to the polls today in three of five British byelections — the first serious test of political opinion since Harold Wilson's big general election victory last March.

This is also being called "judgment day" for the Nationalist — separatist — parties in Scotland and Wales.

The only upset considered possible in today's byelections — at Glasgow Pollok, Rhondda West in Wales and Nuneaton in the English Midlands — is in Pollok, won by Labor by a marginal edge of 1,975 votes in the general election. Labor had first taken Pollok from the Tories in 1964.

Nationalists are running, however, at both Pollok and Rhondda West, traditional Labor strongholds, and gains even short of victory would damage Wilson as he struggles with dissidents in his own party. Such gains are boldly being predicted by Nationalist spokesmen.

Plaid Cymru became the first Nationalist party to send a member to Westminster since the Second World War when it won Carmarthen, a Welsh rural constituency, in a byelection last July.

The sensational Welsh triumph — capturing a Labor seat — followed in a paralytic Scottish Nationalist party gains in many constituencies in the March 31 general election, particularly in rural areas.

SCENE OF NOVEL

Rhondda West, scene of Richard Llewellyn's novel How Green Was My Valley, and Glasgow Pollok are urban in character.

It is Nuneaton's fourth poll in 2 1/2 years but, having totted up a Labor edge of 11,403 last year in the seat that has never gone Tory, the Socialists are confident of another win.

Two other byelections are scheduled for English constituencies: Hornton, a safe Tory seat, March 16, and Brierley Hill, a Tory seat in Staffordshire, in April.

Quick Course on Sex Not Enough, Says Doctor

Teach 'Family Life' Over Many Years

By BILL STAVDAL
B.C. children need years of family life education starting in Grade 1, not just a quick course in sex and VD, says medical health officer Dr. George Evans.

Dr. Evans, who introduced sex education in Greater Victoria schools three years ago, believes that teaching the mechanics of sex is an inadequate way of preparing children for marriage and parenthood.

He would prefer to see small children taught to understand human relationships along with the ABCs of biology. And trained teachers would be the best people to do most of the instruction, said Dr. Evans on Wednesday. Giving his views on the subject in an interview, Dr. Evans said the purely biological approach is not enough for children.

"But we are not teaching facts so much as attitudes," it was as important to teach teen-agers responsibility for their actions as to tell them how their reproductive systems work, he said. And responsibility could not be taught in a few special lectures.

"This has to start even before school," Dr. Evans said. Parental behavior gives a child his first set of rules.

Instructors might be recruited. On Wednesday Dr. Evans reiterated his belief that teachers could do a good job in family education. At UBC, Dr. Szasz and a committee of medical and education faculty are preparing a course for instructing student teachers in the field, said Dr. Evans. But it will likely be four or five years before it reaches the public.

What's to Do?

Aid Fund Sits In Bank

What is the government going to do with $420.82 in people's money which was supposed to have gone to a children's relief fund nearly seven years ago? The question was asked in the legislature Wednesday night by Tom Berger, NDP member for Vancouver-Burrard. He said Premier Bennett announced the fund on April 21, 1960. At that time, he pledged a $50,000 donation by the provincial government to UNICEF. In addition to the straight gift, the government was to match each dollar up to $475,000 donated by the public. "It is a disgrace to this House and this province if the premier doesn't send the $50,000, the $420.82, plus a matching $420.82, to UNICEF tonight," said Mr. Berger. He said the money had been sitting in a bank account while countless children had starved.

Would Vanier 'Want Us to Work?'

Legislative Tempers Flare At NDP Medicare Demand

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Tempers flared in the legislature Wednesday when the NDP pressed the government without success for some assurance that B.C.'s proposed medicare bill will qualify this province for federal financial aid.

The NDP had been jabbing away at the government all day with taunts that the NDP would form a government here within three years, when Alex Macdonald (NDP, Vancouver East) launched an attack on medicare.

NIGHT SITTING

The situation deteriorated shortly before the dinner hour when Premier Bennett, who has been pressing for completion of the session before Easter, called for a night sitting.

"Would the governor-general have wanted us to work to-night?" Leo Nimick (NDP, Kootenay) called from across the floor.

"He served many nights in the field of battle, my friend," the premier retorted.

MORE COMMENT

"You sure showed a lot of respect for him today," Mr. Nimick fired back.

"He wasn't mixed up with Commies, either," snapped Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Macdonald wanted to know, during debate on Health Minister Black's estimates, whether the minister intended to bring in legislation which would align B.C. with Ottawa's requirements, to be eligible for an estimated $20,000,000 a year in grants.

Mr. Black replied, "You'll have to judge that and debate that at the time the act comes down."

Mr. Macdonald said that, from such an answer, "we can only assume there will be another year of wrist-twisting to try to get Ottawa to alter their plan to suit his wishes, and I say that would be deplorable."

The minister then said B.C. "will attempt to co-operate with the federal government" and he expected another federal-provincial conference would be held on medicare matters.

IN HOUSE SOON But he refused to discuss B.C.'s medicare bill until it reaches the House late this week or early next week.

Patrick McGeer (L, Vancouver-Point Grey) and Liberal leader Perrault joined in an attempt to extract information from Mr. Black a statement on the government's stand on fluoridation. Mr. McGeer calling B.C. "the last bastion of health crackpots in North America."

However, the minister would not comment.

When the two asked that the majority required for fluoridation referendums be lowered to 50 per cent from 60, Mr. Black said amendments are proposed to the Municipal Act but did not indicate their nature.

Mr. Perrault got some reaction when he blasted the recently-appointed minister for not answering questions.

"We weren't sent here to be greeted by silence," said the Liberal leader. "I didn't come here to be fobbed off by these Weak Nelly excuses."

He wanted to know how many extended-care hospital beds are under the dollar-a-day scheme and Mr. Black said 1,352 either in operation or under construction.

KIDNEY MACHINES

He asked what's being done about getting more kidney machines and Mr. Black said the government is taking the B.C. Medical Association's advice and "no request has been turned down."

Mr. Macdonald rejoined the fight later with a demand that the government take over all chronic care in B.C.

"We have an absolutely scandalous situation still in chronic hospital care in B.C.," he said. "There are practically no new beds."

He said a 1965 program to increase the number of chronic care beds provided under dollar-a-day resulted in a paper figure of 200 new beds, which were simply social welfare beds reclassified.

Outside the House, Mr. Strachan charged the premier is "trying to intimidate and bulldoze" MLAs into hurrying the people's business through the legislature.

UNTIL MARCH 19 He said the session is "almost 10 days ahead of the work" done last year. Health estimates were passed on the 55th day last year, which gives this session until March 19.

To Mr. Bennett's claim that the NDP is "abusing rules of the House and talking too long," Mr. Strachan said his party will "make whatever statements have to be made and ask whatever questions should be asked."

Local Level Blamed For Hospital Crisis

Many problems in new hospital construction begin at the local level, Health Minister Black said Wednesday.

During the debate in the legislature of his department's estimates, he said plans had been delayed because hospital boards didn't get co-operation from architects or local jurisdictions.

B.C. Hospital Insurance Service was often erroneously the "whipping boy" in hospital construction problems, but "I'm trying to cut down the red tape," said the minister.

CRITICISM Mr. Black was the object of a barrage of criticism from Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who wanted to know what the government was going to do about the long waiting lists for elective surgery.

A case was cited of a Vancouver woman who had to wait 16 months before her gall bladder could be removed.

"The basic problem is finance," said Mr. Perrault. "Until we come to grips with this problem, we won't solve any hospital problems."

UTTER FAILURE He also charged the government's announcement that it would provide extended care on a $1-a-day basis was an "utter failure."

He said the government's announcement that it would provide extended care on a $1-a-day basis was an "utter failure."

Health Minister Martin in 1965 that such care would be provided to patients at $1 a day was "a great propaganda effort by this Social Credit government."

Mr. Perrault wanted to know how many people had enjoyed those benefits since 1965. He said he knew of a woman whose stay in a private hospital was costing her more than $200 a month.

Man's Choice: Find $17,000 Or Die Early

By JOHN MATTERS

A West Vancouver man with a kidney disease has the choice of finding $17,000 or dying prematurely.

His case was brought to the legislature Wednesday by Liberal Leader Ray Perrault during debate of health department estimates. It was an illustration, said Mr. Perrault, of the desperate situations which arise from insufficient kidney, or hemodialysis, machines in this province.

The man needs the money to go to the University of Washington in Seattle, for training in home hemodialysis treatments and purchase of the necessary equipment. The machine would cost about $10,000.

COULDN'T GO BACK Until two years ago, he was regularly having the poisons filtered out of his bloodstream at the kidney machine unit at Vancouver General Hospital.

He was sent to another hospital, but the effectiveness of the treatments decreased. When he wanted to go back to VGH, he was told that he was "too old" by a board which decides who should get on the machines.

His only alternative was to get on the home treatment plan, for which training can be obtained only at the University of Washington.

SEEKING HELP

The man said Wednesday night that he is trying to obtain government assistance for the Seattle trip. In the meantime, he is taking peritoneal dialysis, a 20-times-a-week treatment which is keeping him from working.

Seal Killing More Humane This Year

HALIFAX (CP)—The general manager of the Ontario Humane Society said Wednesday a preliminary look at the 1957 seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence indicates seals are being killed more humanely than last year. Tom Hughes said in a telephone interview from the Magdalen Islands community of seals. Cap-sux-Meules that sealers appeared to be observing new regulations laid down by the federal fisheries department. Hardwood clubs no more than 30 inches long and without being used. Complaints were made that hooks were some- times driven into live seals. "We were out all day Tuesday and saw everything that could be seen," Mr. Hughes said. "They were using the proper clubs." High winds and blowing snow would need a better look at Wednesday grounded about 60 small aircraft taking part in the hunt and prevented humane officials from reaching the seal herd. They were hoping for clear weather today. Mr. Hughes said visibility was poor on this Tuesday and he would need a better look at killing operations before commenting more fully.

"Spring into Fashion"

Tomorrow, you'll see Spring's most fashionable colours and fabrics . . . personally modelled for you in designs by Simplicity. An added attraction: a Simplicity Fashion Consultant will commentate the Show while you relax. You'll love the wonderful new styles for home-sewing. See you tomorrow! Show times: Friday evening 7:30 and Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Just Wait

Too young for spring championship dog shows of Victoria City Kennel Club this year are Dachshund puppies Karl and Griselda, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Burchett of 2960 Ardubus. But their sire Champion Sherman and dam Champion Alexia, will be shown, along with several hundred other entries, at shows in Sancha Hall, Sidney, from 9:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Junior handling champion goes on at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Curteis

Our Principals

Cedar To NATO

Thomas Curteis of Willows elementary school is a Greater Victoria principal whose career has included a two-year "hitch" abroad.

Mr. Curteis was born in Port Angeles. His parents were English, however, and therein lies the explanation for the unusual spelling of his name.

Research during a visit overseas a few years ago showed the family descended from a man named Courtois, who came to England from Normandy with William the Conqueror.

RAISED AT CEDAR

Mr. Curteis' parents brought him as a child to Vancouver Island, and he was raised at Cedar, near Nanaimo.

He received his early education there and at Ladysmith high school, going on to UBC for his BA and BEd. after taking teacher training at Victoria Normal School.

Luckier than many in those days, his first teaching post was right at home in Cedar, where he taught primary grades for three years. The next three were spent at the Indian school at Vernon before coming to Victoria in 1941.

SECOND YEAR

Here he taught for a year and a half at Tillicum, then finished the second year as principal of Royal Oak school.

For the next eight years he was principal at McKenzie Avenue, and he spent one at Tolmie before moving to Willows in 1952.

There he has been ever since, except for the years 1961-1963. This was his overseas period, when he was principal of an RCAF school for NATO at Ramstein in West Germany. Here too his name caused some confusion, for the German people knew only one way to pronounce the "ci," and he grew accustomed to being called "Mr. Curteyes."

CITY CHAMPION

Mr. Curteis says his favorite hobby is chess. At one time he held the city championship for three years, but regrets he has little time for it now. He has also retained a keen interest in all sports.

His is truly a teaching family. His wife, whom he married at Cedar, was a teacher. Their son and daughter followed the same profession, the latter teaching now at St. Patrick's School in Victoria and the former taking extra studies at UBC. — E.M.S.

Driver Hurt In Collision

One man was treated in St. Joseph's Hospital following a two-car crash early Wednesday morning at Quadra and Hillside.

George Weatherall, 410 Gorge West, was treated for head cuts and rib injuries suffered when his eastbound car collided with a car driven north on Quadra by Robert Johnson of 608 Cornwall. Damage was estimated at $1,400.

Water Ski Finals Here?

Canadians Examine Beaver Lake

Beaver Lake may be the site of the Canadian water ski championships in July, if Saanich gives permission.

An application to use the northeast shore of the lake was received Wednesday by the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee but, because the Elk-Beaver parkland complex will probably be under the jurisdiction of Saanich by that time, the bid was referred to the northern municipality.

The lake is protected, it has sanitary and telephone facilities and is close to the highway, which would facilitate press coverage.

City parks administrator Herbert Warren said a special resolution would have to be passed by Saanich council permitting boats to travel in excess of five miles an hour. At present certain sections of Beaver and Elk Lakes are barred to speedboats. Included is the area under consideration.

Mr. Warren added an expenditure of about $1,000 would be necessary to clean up margins of the lake and improve the road to a nearby parking area which would be used.

Climate Too Mild

By M. V. CHESNUT

Our greatest asset here, from the standpoint of attracting new residents, is our winter climate. We have the highest average winter temperature of any place in Canada, and our freedom from any prolonged harsh weather does wonders for our reputation as a good place to live and work, but I am not at all sure those mild conditions are good for our soil.

Winter rains tend to dissolve and leach away the mineral nutrient salts, and much of the goodness in our soil is washed away in our drainage ditches and drains. Heavy ground, with a high clay content, requires very careful handling, for without the cleansing and pulverizing effect of hard, prolonged frost, the stuff is too sticky to work when wet and too hard and brick-like when dry.

The best way with these problem clay soils is to catch them in that in-between state, just when the ground is beginning to dry out from the March winds, and work like mad chopping in or turning under all kinds of bulky organic matter—peat moss, compost, sawdust, straw manure, green manure crops or what have you.

Dig this coarse stuff in to the full depth of the spade, not burying it as a layer but mixing it intimately and thoroughly with the soil. Better save the more expensive peat moss for working into the top two inches of surface soil, to create a good texture for seeds and young plants.

This treatment, plus the generous use of pulverized limestone, will soon improve the texture of even the heaviest soil. Ordinary garden lime—hydrated lime—is good, but pulverized limestone rock is better for this particular purpose, for its gritty texture is useful in opening up heavy, close-textured soil and it may be applied at any time of the year without danger to any plants except the most confirmed lime-haters, for it is mild, slow-acting and long-lasting in its action.

This pulverized limestone, sometimes sold under the name of calcium carbonate, is an absolute must for any of the stone fruits—peaches, plums, apricots, cherries and nectarines—for a shortage of lime in some acceptable form is responsible for many of the obscure troubles which show up in these fruits.

On the subject of lime, though, just a word of warning to new gardeners: Use a little discretion in the application of that bag of lime. Don't go scattering it broadcast all over your new garden, for sooner or later you'll get the urge to try your hand at growing some of the lime-hating shrubs.

Azaleas, rhododendrons, camellias and hollies all dislike lime and become anemic when grown on limey ground. So do some but not all of the heathers. That lovely blue-flowered hydrangea will bloom in a muddy pink shade if lime is used anywhere near its roots, although the pink or red varieties will have deeper, clearer colors if limed.

For those gardeners who insist on dosing such acid-loving shrubs with chemicals, the best preparation to use is chelated iron—pronounced "key-lated." This is a form of iron which doesn't get itself locked up and made unavailable by the action of lime in the soil.

I still think the best treatment to keep these lime-hating shrubs in good health is to lay off the chemicals and maintain a permanent surface mulch of rotted leaves or peat moss over the roots, topping it up annually as it decomposes and is pulled into the soil by the earthworms.

I'll grant you this is a slow process and more of a preventive measure than a cure, and in cases where the leaves of the shrubs are already turning pale—this is a form of anemia called chlorosis—we have no choice but to administer a fast-acting iron tonic. Chelated iron is sold in garden shops under such names as Sequestrene, Versenol and Tru-Green Iron.

ART BUCHWALD Stages New Powell 'Trial'

If Adam Had Been Humble

It has been said that the reason the U.S. House of Representatives treated Adam Clayton Powell so badly is because Powell refused to show any humility. How different everything would have been if the ex-Congressman (at least for the moment) had thrown himself on the mercy of the House and asked forgiveness.

"Adam Clayton Powell, please step forward."

"Yassuh, boss."

"It has been charged that you have insulted this body of lawmakers."

"Ah'm a sinner. Amen."

"That you put your wife on your payroll although she did no work and received no checks."

"Ah did the taxpayers wrong, Lordy Lord."

"That you furthermore used an airline credit card for personal trips to Florida for yourself and your beautiful secretary and that you spent in excess of $10,000,000 of government money."

"Praised be the government and all its good works."

"Adam Clayton Powell, you have lived high on the hog for 30 years. Your absentee record is known to all of us, and your contempt of court citation in New York still hangs over your head."

"How could ah have done it after the white folks have been so good to me?"

"This House can not allow anyone to violate its rules nor can it allow anyone to be guilty of unethical conduct, particularly if it gets in the newspapers."

"Ah have seen the light. May ah be struck down during a filibuster if ah sin once more."

"It isn't enough to say you're sorry, Adam. You must be made an example of, or every congressman will be putting his wife on his payroll and taking his secretary to Bimini."

"Let me be punished; let the full force of this House crash down on my head; and then let me dwell in the House of Representatives forever and ever."

"Adam Clayton Powell, this body is impressed by your humility and we want to do everything we can to make your punishment as light as possible."

"Ah beg to differ with you, sah, but ah think ah should get the full treatment. What ah have done is unforgivable. If you show me mercy then ah will not feel ah have been forgiven. You must purge me of my guilt, for only then will ah be able to shave and look at mahself in the morning."

"What should we do with you, Adam?"

"Let me pick a bale of cotton, pick a bale a day."

"That would be too harsh."

"Ah could tote a barge and lift a bale and if ah got a lil drunk, ah could land in jail."

"I don't think that would be constitutional."

"But you don't understand, sah. Mah heart is weary and ah'm sick of tryin'. Ah'm tired of livin' and 'feared of dyin'."

"Sing it, Adam."

"But ole man river, he just keeps rollin' along."

"As you can see, Adam, there isn't a dry eye in the House. We're going to let you take your seat, because we're a forgiving people in this body and we see a man as humble as you, we can only say 'Go forth, Brother, and sin no more.'"

"Thank you, boss. Ah'll jes go and take mah seat in the back."

Stuff of Dreams

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

It has been well said that man is the only animal who apes himself in his dreams and in dependent upon them for his advancement.

The dream-life of man is symptomatic of his urge to transcend himself. If he can dream often enough about a desirable quality, and it then becomes desirable enough, he will not only imagine that he possesses it, but may actually acquire it.

Apparently, most of our contemporary writers and playwrights do not agree. If their current crop of novels and plays are any indication, they are seeking to portray "realistically" the actual human condition and situation.

In their hands, "realism" has come to mean what one sees, not what one dreams. As a result, human life is depicted as grimy, sordid and meaningless.

Man is but Sisyphus carrying stones up the mountain, rolling them down, climbing down only to bring them up again. The ground under man's feet is a slippery treadmill.

The Greeks recognized man's tragic fate. But unlike our contemporary writers, their "realism" did not lead them to view life as a sordid round of endless miseries.

Students of ancient Greece remind us that their sculptors idealized the human body, rather than distort it the way some modern artists do, because they recognized that, in reality, the body was often disturbingly unpleasant, not always beautiful.

In their plays, Greek actors were masked, in order to lend to their features an appearance of perfection which their own human faces could not.

And stage heroes were given artificial height, to add impressiveness to man's limited stature, to make them look like "heroes."

Speaking with disdain of his fellow dramatist, Sophocles once said of Euripides: "He paints men as they are; I paint them as they ought to be."

There will always be this quarrel among men, and particularly among sensitive, creative men. Some will "paint man as he is," some, "as he ought to be."

But questions must still be asked. Is man only what he is? Or is he also something of what he might be? In other words: If we are to be "realistic," does this mean that we must claim as "real" only the actual, and never take the potential into account?

Is there, perhaps, something darkly wrong with those who look at life with glasses of dark hues, as there is with the polyannas who can only see through the rose-colored?

Unhappily, modern writers, like modern philosophers, see the cards of life as heavily stacked against man. He just cannot win the game because there is no human possibility.

Thus, in their hands, all human relations become the object of profound disgust.

At every turn, they admonish us neither to savor nor to drink from life's cup; they forever label it with their grim warning: "Danger, Poison!"

Or worse, still, they sometimes seem not to care if we do drink the poison, since, they believe, there is nothing better to drink.

Like Ernest Hemingway, they toast life with these scornful words: "Had nothing, full of nothing, nothing is with thee."

To be sure, if we live at all, all of us must live dangerously. Perils lurk wherever we turn; traps in ambush await our unsuspecting missteps. And life's cup, often overflows with its dregs.

But we have our moments. Good and beautiful and significant moments. And when we dream we seem to see again in fleeting glimpses what we might yet be.

Then let the writers write and the philosophers philosophize. But let them be truly "realistic." Yes, man is born between the warring urges of his animal and his divine natures. But if they persist in seeing him as animal, he will remain an animal—and dream no more.

But he can dream! And let them not forget.

Joel Makes It

SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEW YORK (NANA) — "We met 14 years ago," said Joel Grey, "at the Mocambo in Hollywood. Do you remember? I was dancing with a cut-out of Betty Grable." Then I remembered, but only vaguely, the diminutive actor-dancer-singer. You couldn't forget him today if you wanted to. Joel is the smash hit in the smash musical on Broadway, Cabaret. He is billed fifth in the show and they should do something about that. It's all his, with no doubts when you hear the thunderous applause as he takes his bow fifth from the end...

"It's the first show I ever revisted," said Joel with a shyness that is unexpected because he is so brash as the Germanic emcee who grows more and more decadent in the play. He has been seen on Broadway before—he took over for Anthony Newley in Stop the World, and for Tommy Steele in Half a Sixpence.

"I'm celebrating my 25th year in show business," he informed me after a bit of prodding. "I started at 10 playing Pud in On Borrowed Time at the Cleveland Playhouse. I'll be 35 in April and it is hard to realize that I have finally made it."

In addition to his appearance as a guest on Barbara Streisand's next TV special Joel will probably land a leading role in the movie version of her Funny Girl... So little Joel Grey has made it.

"I am still in a state of shock, but what a sweet feeling when it does come. Not screaming and excitement, but a warm calm. At the party after the first night, my wife and I just sat facing each other with a smile. I think we slept that way. The show is a sell-out. So many of my friends come to see. Imagine! Mike Nichols and Jackie Kennedy couldn't get seats! Warren Beatty stayed over in New York a couple of extra days in order to see the show."

Joel is sitting pretty, moneywise, because he is signed only until September 1, a year from the date they started rehearsals. While Lorie Lays and Jack Gifford and, to a lesser degree, Jill Haworth, are good, I cannot imagine Cabaret without Grey. So there will have to be a new deal for him and he is in a position to dictate very good terms...

"So many new things are happening to me," Joel confided. "I never took an interest in business before. Now I do. It's the first time there's been any press interest in me."

How did I get the part? Hal Prince saw me in Stop the World and Half a Sixpence... We were lunching at "21," and Joel, looking around at the well-fed faces and pink coats, said, "I've never been in '21' before. All those years of struggling. At 34 I felt like 55. Now I'm going to be 35 and I feel like 21. It all has an unreality. It means more when you've waited and had hard times. I was never reviewed before but I learned my craft."

Joel played bits during his Mocambo engagement. When he goes to Hollywood this time, it will be as a star.

Alarm Bells Ringing

Hellyer's Plan Worrying U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A former U.S. naval attaché in Ottawa has raked Canada's military-aviation plan from stem to stern.

Mr. Hellyer, the Royal Canadian Navy's chief of staff, is an anti-submarine warfare force, we may be sure that the alarm bells are ringing in U.S. naval headquarters in Washington, Norfolk, Va. and Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Hellyer, who served in Ottawa from 1956 to 1959, is the author of an article called "Canadian Unification: The World Watches," in the current issue of U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings.

DISCUSSION DUE

The magazine is published monthly by the U.S. Naval Institute, a private organization.

Ryan also said the protest requirements of senior Canadian naval officers have ensured a good parliamentary discussion on the navy and "the upshot may be a veering away from the humanitarian policy of international peacekeeping to the more realistic one of protecting Canadian and North American interests."

11,000,000 Use Pill

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Planned Parenthood World Population Organization said Wednesday 11,000,000 women throughout the world are using birth control pills.

About half are U.S. residents, while Brazil is second with 646,000 users, Canada third with 450,000 and England fourth with 415,000.

Sorrow Fills Final Farewell

OTTAWA (CP) — A mourning capital paid its final farewell tribute to Governor-General George Vanier in three hours of solemn ceremony Wednesday that intermingled state pageantry with notes of religious triumph. (See also Page 19.)

It ended when the body of the 78-year-old head of state was gently placed aboard a funeral train that pulled slowly away in the early afternoon bound for Quebec City, where he is to be buried after further state and church services today.

Thousands ignored zero cold and a biting west wind to stand bareheaded and silent under a sunny sky as the massive funeral cortege formed on Parliament Hill, where Gen. Vanier's closed coffin had lain in state in the red Senate chamber since late Monday. More than 26,000 viewed it there.

The flag-draped coffin had not been opened since the governor-general's frail body, dressed in his formal blue general's uniform, was placed in it soon after his death from a heart collapse Sunday morning.

Eight red-jacketed RCMP constables carried the coffin out to the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings, hung with black drapes. There it was placed on a gun carriage drawn by 60 sailors from Halifax in their naval blues.

A few moments earlier one of the sailors, who had been waiting in the cold breeze for better than an hour, collapsed on the asphalt roadway.

Dr. Jean Vanier, one of Gen. Vanier's four sons, had just emerged with his family and quickly went to the sailor. He spoke to him reassuringly and helped him to his feet.

Ottawa Back To Crises As Usual

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament Hill today returns to the twin crises it placed aside to mourn the death of Governor-General Vanier.

Put a UFO In Your Washer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Flying objects which frightened area residents by casting "an eerie glow and dripping flames" were identified Wednesday as laundry bags.

Police said science students at West Virginia University launched stashed laundry bags with a propulsion system based on the hot-air principle. A cardboard candle holder and a brace of candles which heated the air inside kept the bags aloft.

The stashed bags caused the "eerie glow" and dripping candle was caused the "dripping flames."

Controversial German Loses Post

BREMEN (AP) — Adolf von Thadden, controversial deputy chairman of the National Democratic party in West Germany, lost his post as the party's state chairman of Lower Saxony Wednesday after a court ruled his election was invalid.

He beat incumbent Lotter Kuehne 115-72 Feb. 2 but the court threw out the vote because Kuehne was technically still in office at the time.

Meat Strike Boils

Irish Farmers Chase Minister

DUBLIN (AP) — Picket lines of striking farmers blocked Dublin Wednesday and turned back trucks from Northern Ireland loaded with cattle and vegetables intended for the capital of the Irish Republic.

Dealers talked of a meat famine by the weekend. Stocks of vegetables were getting low in stores as a week-long strike entered its third day.

About 500 angry farmers crashed through a police line as George Colley, industry and commerce minister, arrived to open a factory at Ballymaeduff, 60 miles outside Dublin.

FARMER HURT — The farmers pelted the car with chunks of turf and ham-moned on its roof with placards Colley fled to a hotel, with the farmers in pursuit. The crowd broke up after hearing pleas from farmer leaders.

Somewhat, a truck loaded with cattle got through the picket lines and unloaded at a Dublin slaughterhouse. It plowed into the picket lines on the way out, injuring a 60-year-old farmer.

The strike was called by the National Farmers' association. Ireland's 200,000 farmers are demanding larger subsidies from the government and protesting the imprisonment of 84 farmers.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED — The jailed farmers refused to pay fines imposed after they demonstrated on Irish roads Jan. 9, blocking traffic with tractors and other heavy machinery.

The association estimates that since the strike started more than 50,000 cattle, sheep and pigs have been kept from market. Some 250 bacon workers have already been laid off.

If the strike runs its scheduled course until midnight Saturday night—and there is no indication it will not—meat supplies will vanish.

YOUNG NAVAL rating who fainted shortly before Vanier cortege left Parliament buildings was helped to feet by Dr. Jean Vanier, one of late governor-general's four sons. Sailor returned to post among 60 naval ratings who pulled coffin-laden gun carriage from buildings to Roman Catholic basilica of Notre Dame where 1,200 attended service.

B.C. Supreme Court

BRAATEN FREE --PROBE STAYS

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday dismissed a contempt charge against union leader Orville Braaten, who had been jailed Feb. 22 for contempt of a royal commission investigating invasion of privacy.

But Mr. Justice Peter Seaton refused a further application by Mr. Braaten's lawyer to halt the "bugging" inquiry.

Mr. Braaten, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, had been free on bail since his lawyer, Mary Southin, presented the applications Feb. 27.

Mr. Justice Seaton criticized hearing commissioner R. A. Sargent for taking the inquiry beyond the scope outlined in the terms of reference. He said all parties attempted to use the commission as a sounding board for an inter-union dispute.

Mr. Braaten was jailed after refusing to answer inquiry questions about his union's dispute with the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Justice Seaton said Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

The royal commission was triggered by the electronic bugging of last November's convention of Braaten's union.

Mr. Justice Seaton said the arguments between the unions might be the background to the animosity between them, but not background to the use of electronic wiretapping equipment for the purpose of invading privacy.

RETURN TO SCOPE

The order-in-council did not authorize an investigation into the union dispute, he said.

Mr. Justice Seaton said it was up to commissioner Sargent to determine the best manner of returning the inquiry to the scope set down in the order-in-council.

In releasing Mr. Braaten on the habeas corpus writ, the court said the warrant committing him was defective. It should have alleged the questions Mr. Braaten failed to answer touched the subject matter of the inquiry.

DID NOT TOUCH

Mr. Justice Seaton said it follows from this conclusion that Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

Mr. Braaten's lawyer applied for the writ and restraining order after the union leader's order for commitment. She also asked that the commissioner be restrained from committing any person to jail. The latter application was refused.

Red Revolt Crushed In Indonesia

JAKARTA (UPI) — Units of the Indonesian army crushed an uprising by outlawed Communists in a battle in central Java, the official Indonesian news agency Antara reported Thursday.

It said the leader of the Communist force and 80 of his followers were killed.

Antara reported more than 1,000 Communist cadres were captured, crushing an attempt to stage a coup.

Central Java is a stronghold of forces loyal to President Sukarno, who bitterly opposes the current efforts to strip him of his title and put him on trial for treason as an alleged accomplice in the abortive Communist coup of October, 1965.

Antara's report came as the Indonesian congress debated a resolution demanding Sukarno's dismissal and trial as a traitor.

Gen. Suharto, the Indonesian army strongman who has assumed most of Sukarno's powers, warned harsh actions could touch off a civil war led by forces who support him.

Antara said the clash erupted when army troops raided a key resistance base of the outlawed Indonesian Communist party. It had been camouflaged as a headquarters of a mystic identified as Suro, whose practice was banned by central Java military authorities last year.

British Kept Rights

Offshore Argument Begins

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government argued Wednesday that British Columbia up to the line of union with Canada in 1871 had no jurisdiction over lands under its territorial sea or the continental shelf off its coasts.

C. F. J. Carson, head of a five-member battery of lawyers appearing for the federal government, made the assertion as the Supreme Court of Canada opened hearings into a government-ordered reference into ownership of mineral rights off the B.C. coast.

Prepared to argue against Ottawa are lawyers representing Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and B.C.

Prince Edward Island is represented at the hearings but will not present any arguments. Manitoba and Alberta served notice they will not be represented.

Quebec had refused from the start to appear and Saskatchewan with no seacoast also is taking no part in the legal battle.

Opening the federal case Wednesday, Mr. Carson said two areas are under question—the land under the three-mile territorial sea off Canada, and the land under the continental shelf which stretches seaward from the three-mile limit.

He said B.C. was not a sovereign state before union with Canada. It had been a British colony and the extent of its government and jurisdiction were subject to the control of the British.

The British had rights in the territorial sea and had never transferred these rights to the colony.

Because of the funeral of Governor-General Vanier, the court held only a short afternoon sitting but will return to its normal two sittings today.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, administrator of the country pending appointment of a new governor-general, is not on the bench for the reference. Seven justices, headed by Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright, are hearing the reference although it is the practice for the full nine-man court to hear constitutional issues.

School Board Says

'Government Is To Blame'

By MARIE CADORETTE

LAKE COWICHAN —

School board trustees Tuesday expressed concern about delayed payments to contractors and others doing work for the school board here.

Chairman of District 66 Archie Greenwell pointed out the board was not at fault.

"Everybody realizes the body which puts us in this bind," said Mr. Greenwell. "The provincial government does the financing."

Trustee Dan Hammond said, "It is unfortunate we are behind in our bills."

Trustees also received a letter from British Columbia

Trustees' Association, requesting a detailed report of construction delays.

Chairman of building and grounds, Trustee Hammond, said he paid a visit to the educational department, and had not received word concerning clearing and construction of a South Shore Elementary School.

He said additions to the J. H. Boyd, Stanley Gordon, a new elementary school and additions to Lake Cowichan High School held priority over other projects.

"We are already a year behind in our new science program," said Mr. Hammond.

Trustees also approved

$30,437 be spent on high school equipment.

The board passed a motion to sell Lot 5, Block 15 to Lake Cowichan Kinsmen at a nominal fee.

The lot will be used for a new public health centre.

Chairman of the educational committee, Mrs. Cathy Sharp, felt the property should remain as playgrounds for Gladys Lomas annex students until a new school was constructed.

"The children are at a disadvantage now," she said, adding the current grounds were substandard.

Sandwich Workshop

Pupils Open Drive To Help Children

COURTENAY — A donation of $405 from the students at Comox Junior Secondary School has kicked off a giant fund-raising campaign aimed at a combined adult workshop and residence for retarded children at Sandwick.

The donation from the school was presented to president of Beaufort Association for Retarded Children Leo Agenes.

A minimum of $20,000 is required to put phases one and two of the association centennial project into operation.

Phases one and two will require the complete renovation of one wing and the centre portion of the former officers' mess at the old army camp at Sandwick.

The building, owned by the school board, is part of a 92-acre parcel of land bought by the board when the militia unit was disbanded and the property put up for sale. It has been leased to Beaufort Association for Retarded Children.

SEVERAL GROUPS

Several organizations have indicated keen interest in the project and briefs have been presented for approval.

The first to make official public about its intentions is Courtenay Kinsmen Club. The Kinsmen have promised to spearhead the development of the project and assist in raising the funds.

Following the announcement of the club action, which was released by Kin president Al Evans, Beaufort association president Leo Agenes emphasized the need for the widest possible participation by Comox Valley clubs, both large and small.

CASH, GOODS

He said donations of cash, goods or work parties will all be required to put the building into operation by late summer.

Rooms in the residence will require furniture, drapes, bedding and in addition the foster parents' suite will require furnishing including a fridge, electric stove and kitchen dishes and equipment.

ANOTHER WING

Eventually the association plans to renovate the remaining wing into another residence, separate from the one to be operated in the first instance.

The residence will have a foster mother and father and house between six and 10 children.

MANY PROBLEMS

Many problems besides the renovation will face the building committee charged with completion of the project. Not the least of these will be appointment of a screening committee to decide upon applicants for entrance as residents.

For further information contact Ruth McKellar at 336-2436, publicity chairman.

Runoff Request

PORT ALBERNI—The city's request for action to stop runoff from E. J. Dunn School will be attended to "immediately," the school board has decided.

The request came following complaints from residents across the street from the school. They claimed the runoff flooded their properties.

Long Miles

Buses' Load Heavy

DUNCAN — A total of 305,802 students have been carried by Cowichan School District buses an estimated 145,780 miles according to the most recent annual figures.

The statistics were included in a report the chairman of safety committee submitted to the board.

He said, "Some 2,250 pupils out of 4,700 travel daily by bus with no accidents reported."

YOUNG PUPILS

"We should like to be assured that the very young pupils of grades 1 and 2, are receiving adequate instruction in pedestrian safety, apart from direction as to correct behavior at marked and supervised crosswalks."

The district's bus superintendent, Dick Price, told the board recently all 11 buses are running at full capacity.

100 MORE

He said, "The buses are carrying 100 more pupils this year over last year and the additional mileage over last year amounts to 15,229 miles."

"It would therefore be wise to retain as a standby for emergency and the ever-increasing number of extra trips the vehicle that would otherwise be retired as soon as delivery of the budgeted new bus comes through."

SEVERAL RUNS

All buses have to make several runs every morning to service the great number of students.

Trustee Patterson said the bus on the Mill Bay run, for instance, has to carry 250 pupils which are picked up and discharged during the trip.

Auxiliaries Convene

PARKSVILLE — Seventy members of ladies auxiliaries to Legion branches in the North Central Vancouver Island Zone attended the recent council meeting at Bowser.

Branches represented were Alberni, Comox, Courtenay, Cumberland, Parksville, Port Alberni, Qualicum Beach, and the host branch Bowser. Members of Campbell River auxiliary, now forming part of the North Vancouver Island zone, attended as guests.

Festival Judge Impressed By Speech Arts Diction

DUNCAN — Cowichan Music Festival standard for speech arts diction has improved greatly since last year.

This is the opinion of adjudicator Mrs. Eileen Parker.

She was remarking on the quality of the recitations of 12 young ladies who took part in Wednesday afternoon's session. (More about the festival on Page 30.)

She felt the standards for boys under 13 years of age in Class 168 were "very high."

John Abbot, Clifside School, was awarded the Peter's Bakery Trophy.

A Ladysmith lad, Kevin Stark, was second in Class 168 with 85 marks.

Three 12-year-old girls who took part in Class 165 of the speech arts section expressed delight in reciting poetry.

One girl, Theresa Galkoway, is an experienced competitor in festivals, and has participated in piano, singing, Bible reading and the speech arts classes.

Theresa said she was rarely nervous while on stage.

"It is something I have to do now that I'm in it," was her attitude for overcoming stage fright.

Another girl, Sharon Logan of Ladysmith, said she has never participated in the music festival before.

Sharon was awarded a trophy for her interpretation of The Sounds in the Morning by Eleanor Farjeon.

Sharon said she entered because, "I wanted the experience, and a friend talked me into it."

Campbell River High Student Protests

School, Staff Lauded

CAMPBELL RIVER — The student body of Campbell River High School has "full and complete confidence" in the operation of the school, according to Peter Paquette, president of the school's students' council.

"We welcome anyone to visit the school to see its first-rate facilities, its excellent teachers, and its industrious students."

The president made his comments in a letter to the Colonist. In it he takes issue with the Colonist's Feb. 28 article on the school by Agnes Flett, headlined No More Chains.

NEWS STORY

"We believe that the news story is basically insulting to the students of the school. It seems to imply that all of us do nothing but sip coffee, smoke cigarettes, and attend classes only if we feel like it. This is not true of the student body."

The president said there are two groups of students attending.

"There are 25 senior matriculation students (equivalent to first-year university students) who have smoking and attendance privileges similar to those of all university students everywhere."

STUDENT BODY

The remainder of the student body consists of Grade 11 and Grade 12 students who do not have smoking or attendance privileges."

The student leader emphasized that the school has granted students certain privileges concerning voluntary class attendance.

"This provides us with an opportunity to exercise responsibility for much of our own education. We appreciate and welcome this gesture of confidence in our maturity."

MANY RULES

"Also, the administration has eliminated many unnecessary rules which only served to annoy the students and make school life a prison."

"We completely support and enjoy this more mature manner of running the school," he added. "The students are enthusiastic about the operation of the school."

WELCOME TRUST

The president said the students, who are treated as "trustworthy young adults," welcome the trust and faith placed in them.

"Indeed, ours is a very satisfied student body. We believe our approach to the school and to our education has warranted the trust placed in us."

"We strongly object to the suggestion that we are interested only in long hair, smoking and mini-skirts. As most young people everywhere, we are interested in preparing ourselves for responsible adulthood."

Driver Fined

COURTENAY — Robert John Glenzie was fined $25 in magistrate's court and suspended from driving for 30 days when he pleaded guilty Tuesday to a charge of driving without due care and attention.

Kennedy Lake Cheered

ULUELET — After being on strike since July, 1966, employees of Brynmar Mines (Noranda) at Kennedy Lake feel happier today.

Mine manager said Wednesday night the strike is over and pickets are being removed. Full operation is expected to resume in 10 days to two weeks.

Mother Knows Best

DUNCAN — Three mothers at Maple Bay have decided to organize a kindergarten and last week it opened at St. Peter's Church hall with Froebel-trained Mrs. Gerry Watson as instructor.

The Maple Bay kindergarten committee consists of Mrs. Tom Varty, Mrs. Alf. Bazett and Mrs. David Garbutt.

BASIC IDEA

Mrs. Watson said the basic idea of the Froebel method is to give children an opportunity to learn through playing.

The German educational reformer and founder of the kindergarten system, Friedrich Froebel realized the significance of play more than 100 years ago.

HIGHER GRADES

Mrs. Watson said the Froebel system could even be applied to higher grades.

In history lessons, for instance, the students would not only learn dates and bare details but their insight into a particular period would be enriched by modelling clothes and studying cultural and social environments of that period to comprehend historical facts.

Fire Improvement District Favored by Taxpayers

ERRINGTON — Taxpayers in the Errington district have voted to establish an improvement district for fire protection services under provision of the Water Act.

A meeting called by the Errington Fire Protection Society was attended by more than 80 taxpayers, to discuss a proposal from the government that the society should continue to provide fire protection by the Errington fire department as at present, but financial affairs would be administered by the department of municipal affairs until the proposed regional district for the general Nanaimo area is incorporated.

Trustees Discuss Educational TV

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — The board of School District 70 at its latest meeting heard an interim report from educational TV committee chairman Bill Marshall on steps taken to acquaint themselves with the progress of the medium in other areas.

Of particular interest was the response to the request from the Kamloops board, which pioneered the use of TV in classrooms in the province and has used the teaching aid for several years. In addition, the board heard from the University of British Columbia, the University of Washington, Nanaimo, Duncan and Vancouver.

INITIAL PLAN

The board also met with Ivan Holway, a former Valley resident now of Duncan, who is associated with a wire-in service there and has been assisting the Duncan board with initial installation and planning.

Barry Black, director of B.C. School Broadcasts and a former teacher here, offered several suggestions in his letter for the board's consideration. Among them was the installation of an adequate number of receivers, taping and distribution by wire, a tele-cine chain, described as an inexpensive camera to tape from film, and the erection of a broadcast studio.

SOME LESSONS

John Andrews, chairman of the local board, said that while most programs would originate elsewhere, some lessons might be prepared locally.

Lewis Rites Friday

PORT ALBERNI — Edward Lewis, 48, a 12-year resident of the valley, died Tuesday at West Coast General Hospital.

Mr. Lewis of Saunders Road, Alberni, was a supervisor in MacMillan Bloedel's Alulp operation.

Mr. Lewis was also well known in Victoria. In addition to his wife, a daughter and three sons at home in Alberni, Mr. Lewis is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary-Ann Lewis, three brothers, David, William and Trevor, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Durkee, all of Victoria, and another sister, Mrs. Dewey Morgan of Cranbrook.

Services will be Friday at 1:30 p.m. in Stevens Funeral Chapel in Port Alberni.

Northcott Still Undefeated Faces Toughest Tests Today

HULL, Que. — Ron Northcott's rink from Calgary continued undefeated after seven rounds at the Canadian men's curling championships Wednesday.

The defending world champion Alberta rink swept past Prince Edward Island, 8-2, in the sixth round and then picked up two on the 11th end to defeat the tough Manitoba quartet, 8-6.

Northcott had suffered muscle spasms in his back in the game against the Islanders but saw a doctor and appeared to be all right against Manitoba in the evening.

The Calgary rink faces its toughest tests of the brief today meeting Saskatchewan and Ontario in the two draws.

Ontario moved into sole possession of second place as both B.C. and Manitoba suffered losses during Wednesday's play.

Patient Willie Spikes Rumors

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — There's a story kicking around that Willie Davis soaked his glove in kerosene, put a match to it and buried the ashes somewhere in his backyard.

"Not true at all," the Los Angeles Dodgers centre fielder set the record straight today, "although I did give the glove away."

The glove Davis was talking about is the same one he wore last Oct. 6 when everybody was talking about him, "although I did give the glove away."

That was the day Willie wished the sun had never come up because before it went down after he committed three errors in one inning to put himself in all the World Series record books and Sandy Koufax out of commission for good.

"They charged me with three errors," says Willie, "but as far as I'm concerned I made only one. That was on the ball I threw wild. I don't feel those other two balls in the air were errors."

Davis dropped both and still insists he never saw them due to the sun.

"If I can see the ball I know I'll get it," he recalled those two bobbles, which suddenly turned the second World Series game around. Why shouldn't I get the ball? I did it all year. But you can't catch what you can't see. I said it then and I say it again now."

Davis has given the glove he wore that day to his seven-year-old son, Gregory.

"I didn't give it away because I was upset with it, either," emphasized Willie. "The reason I gave it away was the same reason I give away all my other ones. It was old. I use two or three or four. There wasn't anything wrong with this glove except it was getting old."

ERRORS FORGOTTEN

As far as Davis is concerned, those three errors are almost completely forgotten. They didn't bug him during the winter and they certainly don't now. Naturally, people still ask him about the three bobbles but he has learned to accept the questions.

It's a new season for everybody and that includes Willie Davis of the Dodgers, who happens to be breaking in a new glove.

Davis is one of those die-hards.

He's still convinced there was nothing really wrong with his old one.

Memorial Arena Miracle Lifts Leafs Two Places

By JIM TANG

OAKLAND & VICTORIA 5

At 10:40 last night the door to the Victoria Maple Leaf office opened slowly and through it came a man wearing a look of stunned pleasure.

"I'll take it, I'll take it, I'll take it," manager Buck Houle kept saying, obviously uncertain whether he had any listeners.

Two minutes later, the door opened again and a fellow who resembled nothing as much as a sleepwalker faced the East and slid silently to his knees. He Winger Lou Jankowski, weakened and underweight because of tooth trouble which has restricted his diet, hadn't been having a particularly good game. Two minutes later he was a hero.

He started his halo-making at 18:40 when he put the puck in from the left edge of the crease after Bob Barlow and Mike LaBelle had combined to give him the chance.

The Leafs changed lines, pulled goalkeeper Al Smith as soon as they got the puck inside the Oakland zone and then lost an argument about where a lacoff should take place.

LOU WAITING

Referee Lloyd Gilmour ruled outside the Victoria zone, Smith returned to the ice and stationed himself for another quick exit.

He headed towards the bench as the Leafs dumped the puck back inside the Oakland zone but hadn't made it before a thundering roar told him that his duties were not over.

Millan Marcetta had grabbed the puck and slid a pass towards the Oakland goal. And there was Jankowski, left in on the player switch, up to backhand it past Jack McCartan.

The ice was finally cleared of debris, play was resumed and it didn't take long before Bob Barlow found himself in front of McCartan in close quarters.

BARLOW ENDED IT

His first intention was to pass but when a Seal defenceman anticipated the move and slid to the right, Barlow picked the top far corner with a wrist shot and the Leafs had their seventh win in eight games.

But there had been more drama just seconds previously. Smith had fooled the dangerous Danny Belisle, in close on a break. And seconds after that got his hand on a drive by Wayne Maxner that appeared ticketed although no save was credited because the goal judge believed it was wide.

And that brings up a point that could be lost in the excitement of the last minutes. Had it not been for the fine play of Smith the Leafs would never have been close enough for any miracle.

For two periods they were outskated and hustled into errors. They passed wildly, got out of position and were continually being hemmed inside their own zone.

They appeared to rally a bit here and there but each time they seemed on their way out of it, they lapsed again. But Smith came up with four or five tremendous stops to never allow the margin past two goals, and that wasn't enough when the Leafs finally snapped out of it.

Oh, yes, a third man followed Mario into the Leaf office. He was tall, dark and glowering.

"Just 80 seconds left," he mumbled, repeating a snatch of conversation, and turned and walked out.

Island Cagers In Tourney Wins

VANCOUVER — Oak Bay and Alberni chalked up opening round victories in the B.C. high school boys' basketball championships, Wednesday at UBC.

Oak Bay came up with a solid team effort to defeat Trail, 45-24. Dave Morjan scored 10 points for Bays followed by Don Burrows, Dave Wirtanen and Bill McCormick, each with nine. Paul Baines four and Dave Wallace two.

Mike Ward scored 14 points for the losers.

ALBERNI SCORES UPSET

Alberni came up with a minor upset by defeating Kamloops, 46-37, behind Dan Bowman's 14 points. Brock Hilliard added 11 points, while Ken Sander, Larry Ferster and Ken Waugh each had seven points.

U.S. Shuttle Team Told Play or Else

TORONTO (CP) — A "play or default" ultimatum went out from the Canadian Badminton Association Wednesday to its United States counterpart.

Don Mackie, president of the CBA, said the U.S. body has requested a postponement of the final round of Thomas Cup competition, scheduled for March 17-18 in San Diego on the grounds that "they can't find proper facilities to play the match."

Mackie said Stu Bernard of Calgary, chairman of arrangements for the Thomas Cup, offered the U.S. Badminton Association facilities at the Glencoe club in Calgary with the suggestion that if the U.S. can't compete on the prescribed date they forfeit the match.

BEAT MEXICO

Canada advanced to the final round of the North American zone by defeating Mexico in Mexico City 9-0. The U.S. defeated Jamaica to meet Canada.

Winner of the North American zone will play the winner of the Asian zone in the Thomas Cup competition, the highest pinnacle of world badminton.

"The U.S. hasn't even named its team yet," Mackie said. "This is something that should be done at least 18 days ahead of the tournament. Our team has been named for some time."

Lord Byng of Vancouver came up with the biggest upset of the opening day by scoring the winning basket in the last minute of play to defeat North Surrey, 44-43.

North Vancouver Norsemen also pulled a minor upset by whipping Prince George, 65-40.

In other first round games, Abbotsford dumped Kitimat, 63-41. Vancouver College defeated Queen Elizabeth Royals, 51-38, and Delbrook swamped Salmon Arm, 70-41.

The Canadian Forces annual basketball will be held at Esquimalt Sports Centre tonight with two draws.

First draw (5:45 p.m.): Crothers vs. Rickward; Ward vs. Fafard; Pratt vs. Padgett; Jannetell vs. Brown; Fink vs. Wright; Amos vs. Richardson.

Second draw (8 p.m.): McKernan vs. Webster; Wilson vs. Moore; Montague vs. Davis; Weber vs. Dickie; Dubuc vs. Low; Davis vs. Butterworth.

Wings Rock Rangers Toronto Narrows Gap

TORONTO Maple Leafs scored five goals in the first period and hung on to defeat Montreal Canadiens, 6-4, in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night and move to within one point of second-place New York Rangers.

The Rangers lost, 3-1, to Detroit Red Wings while Chicago Black Hawks moved to but he blew it in the first with sloppy goaltending.

Bob Nystrom, Jim Stenstrom, Dave Keon, Jim Pappin and Tim Horton all scored on the 21-year-old goalie in the first period. Stenstrom's goal came from the face-off when he caught Veatch napping.

Toronto's final goal was scored by Bobby Baum who in the second period for an extra 32 seconds through a timekeeping error. He was on the ice for a minute when he had his second goal of the season.

FOUGHT BACK

Gilles Tremblay, Claude Proven, J. C. Tremblay and John Ferguson scored for the Canadiens as the Montreal club fought to overcome the healthy Toronto lead.

The Canadiens, who lost their first game in their last five starts, held fourth place with 58 points. Detroit is six points behind and kept its slim playoff hopes alive by downing New York.

ROOKIE COMES UNSTUCK

Montreal rookie Rogatien Veatch went into the game, his ninth of the season, with a two-goal per game against average

It was Detroit's third win in the last 12 games and its fifth on the road all season. The loss stretched New York's winless string to five games.

WINGS TOOK LEAD

Skip Krake took a 3-0 lead on goals by Floyd Smith, Bruce MacGregor and Norm Uhlman. Bob Nevin got one for New York in the third period from a scramble in front of George Gardiner to break the Rangers' scoreless string which had extended more than six periods.

The Bruins got outstanding service from goalie Bernie Parent but he couldn't stop the endless Chicago attacks.

1-0 ahead with a second period goal but Ken Wharram tied it. Stan Mikita got the winner at 7:55 of the final period with his 31st of the season and Hull put the game away at 9:43 when he slotted up to the goalmouth and directed Phil Esposito's pass behind Parent.

Mount Douglas Wins Rugby Classic

By BRIAN DOHERTY

Mount Douglas High School's Mountmen played like hillbillies but still managed to win the Howard Russell Trophy for the first time Wednesday.

Parlaying a 3-0 halftime lead over Oak Bay into a 6-3 victory, Mount Douglas sailed away to the trophy on a freezing day at Carnarvon Park.

Oak Bay hustled and hustled

Mount Douglas throughout and enjoyed a territorial edge but never had the finish to score a try.

The Mountmen were weakened by the absence of star centre Rod Fiddick who was nursing a shoulder injury.

KICK AND CLAP

Both teams played kick and clap rugby. That's where the forwards battle each other for the ball at the cost of bruised shins and cauliflower ears so the backs can show their form.

The backs then kick for touch the moment the ball comes clear, the crowd claps, and the forward battle begins again. It's not attractive rugby but the day didn't call for much more.

Oak Bay had a smart halfback in Ken Sutton and he used the clearing kick most effectively although he never received much protection from his forwards.

DISCARDED RUNNING

Still both teams were guilty of putting their boots to the ball instead of putting the boots into the ground and running the ball when the defences were open.

Mount Douglas centres Jim Temple and John Howe were the hardest runners on the field and halfback Daryl Noultee had a solid game after being wild with his early passes.

Mount Douglas' first try came from a well placed punt by winger Tom Carson and some quick thinking. It was Carson's throw-in after a 60-yard punt and he threw a short one to flanker Al McDonald who had circled around to the front of the lineout.

AGAINST FLOW

The try came against the flow of play and Oak Bay again carried its attack to Mount Douglas territory but was unable to score.

Mount Douglas, undefeated this season, put more into its work in the second half and got some fiery forward work from McDonald, Bill Walton and Ted Lister.

The Mountmen moved the ball around more and forced Oak Bay into errors and hurried kicks. It was a kick from fullback Gerry Horne, moved into the centre during the game, that brought Mount Douglas' second try.

WILD KICK

Horne kicked the ball straight into the arms of Mount Douglas wing Jack Cleeson who ran straight at the line. When he was tackled, he fed the ball to Howe who made ground before sending Noultee over in the corner.

That try sent the Mountmen supporters into wild cheering and Oak Bay into pressure rugby. The reward was a good penalty goal by Horne seven minutes from the end.

Mount Douglas tightened its defences until the final whistle went and then triumphantly carried the Russell Trophy to the hilt.

DATING GAME

One interesting sidelight to the game came when an Oak Bay player used the time taken to retrieve the ball for the many lineouts to make his arrangements for a date Saturday night.

His coach was on the other sideline.

Teams:

Oak Bay: Gerry Horne, Randy Anderson, Glen Myers, Bruce Patton, Bruce Howe, Mike Blades, Ken Smith, Mike Godmark, Jim Henderson, Bob Beck, Lee Doney, Rob Childs, Jim Squam, Jim Dempsey, John Price.

Royals Win Semi-Finals

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—New Westminster Royals downed Trail Junior Smoke Eaters 5-3 in overtime Tuesday night to win the best-of-five B.C. junior hockey semi-final series three games straight.

New Westminster, which took the first two games 6-1 and 10-1, will meet the winner of the Kelowna - Penticton Okanagan series for the junior championship.

Minor Foul-Up Causes Delay In Island Open Golf Tourney

The Island Open golf tournament has been delayed a week by an unexpected announcement Wednesday morning by the Victoria Golf Club that it won't hold the qualifying round on Easter Sunday.

John Carlow, chairman of the Victoria District Golf Committee, said he didn't know the reason for the cancellation except that he thought it was "club policy."

He said the dates for the Open were made at the committee's annual meeting Feb. 16 and the elected representative of the Victoria club did not attend.

NO REPRESENTATIVE

The representative was telephoned and the meeting held up for 30 minutes awaiting his arrival. When he did not show, the meeting proceeded and the dates were scheduled.

It is believed the Victoria club did not want the qualifying round, Easter Sunday, because it would affect other arrangements made for that day.

The qualifying round will be

NANAIMO—Either physical education is important to the student or it should be dropped.

The program, instituted by the department of education that considers class construction as being of prime importance is not wrong in itself, claim local school authorities, but by not building gymnasiums or activity rooms both the taxpayer and the student are suffering.

Only 13 or possibly 14 schools in the area will have these facilities incorporated into the schools that are in existence, or will be by 1968 or 1969 when the last of the planned school buildings will be completed.

The schools that have no facilities are using the nearest hall on rental basis.

These are not necessarily school halls, but those belonging to service clubs and community groups.

"In the long run, it would cost the taxpayer more money," said Bill Lerch, school board chairman, explaining the rentals are really lost money, not a saving.

The fact there are transportation costs included in the costs of using these outside facilities, takes the rentals out of any economic consideration.

USE OF BUSES

Transportation costs of School District 68 total $120,365 not including the costs to take classes to the off-premise halls. This is another $17,000 which included extra-curricular use of buses, such as travelling to the other cities for tournaments and school parties.

This cost is not shared by the provincial government, as is $21,365, which is part of the $120,365.

The balance is for transportation of students who live beyond boundaries approved by the department as within acceptable walking distance.

"It's a hindrance to education," claimed Mr. Lerch.

"The children aren't getting the education they should be getting."

"If the department says this (gymnasiums or activity rooms) isn't a vital part of education, then why have them in the curriculum?" he asked.

Music Festival

Beethoven Sonata Helps
Ladysmith Girl's Win

DUNCAN — The clean playing of a Beethoven sonata and Chopin's Waltz in E-Minor has earned 14-year-old Mary Jackson of Ladysmith first place with 84 points in the centennial class.

This class opened the piano section of the week-long 18th Annual Cowichan Music Festival.

She will play at the provincial semi-finals of the Centennial Canadian Music Festival.

Other contestants in Monday night's class were Susan de Burgh, Cherri Horel, both of Ganges, Salt Spring Island, and Alice Popovich of Ladysmith.

Mary Jackson Tuesday morning once again was given high marks by adjudicator Willard Schultz of Seattle.

In the slight reading for students under 15 years of age she received 87 points.

In reference to the centennial class, Mr. Schultz, who judged here last year, said, "I would have liked to see many more students take part, but what I heard was good."

is interesting to see how much each of the pupils progresses."

Festival class winner Mary Jackson said she would like to continue studying music to make it a career.

The two pieces she played reflected her fondness for Beethoven and Chopin.

"I like them very, very much."

She and her 11-year-old sister Catherine, who also competes in the piano classes, are taught by their father, Steven Jackson.

Mr. Jackson is an accountant and he gained his musical experience through orchestral work.

He said, "I think this festival is marvelous for the parents and the students and the people responsible for organizing this wonderful event deserve very much thanks."

Free Tests
Tuesday

NANAIMO — Free vocational interests tests, sponsored by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C., will be held in Nanaimo District Secondary School Tuesday. The tests start at 7:30 p.m.

The results will be sent to the school counsellors who will inform individual students of the results. Those showing an aptitude for accounting will be contacted later.

It is interesting to see how much each of the pupils progresses."

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's development is being stifled behind the curtain of time.

Dr. Madin Zorkin, one of the leaders in real estate development and a booster for development in Nanaimo, invited two friends to the Island recently to discuss an idea he had.

The idea was to connect the Island to Seattle by air.

His friends were Nick Bez, West Coast Airlines president, and Robert Beaupre, Seattle First National Bank president, both men of imagination and money.

"We are behind a curtain of time," said Mr. Zorkin, referring to the restricted development of the Island.

If the Island is to develop, he maintained, then quick and easy access to the mainland is mandatory.

TWO EXTREMES

"We travel across the country in three to four hours, and to Europe in less than 10, but when we come home we face the frustrating wait of several hours to cross 30 miles of water."

A secondary industry, embracing all aspects of fishing, from boat building and moorage to packing, canning and storage is dependent upon attracting people to live here, or at least communicate with the mainland within minutes, rather than hours, he explained.

SEATTLE LINK

Connection with Seattle, by 15 minutes of flight from Cassidy Airport, would attract high numbers of Americans who come here for short times only, with their yachts.

If they could commute, they would leave their boats here and thereby save time.

These businessmen all value time to the extreme, and it is for this reason that so little time is spent here — it takes too long to come and go.

ANOTHER REASON

The projected growth of Seattle and Vancouver is another reason for quick communication.

Commuters could work or study in Vancouver and live near Nanaimo, thereby saving the frustration of traffic congestion on the streets.

Before secondary industries are started, or people are attracted to live here, we must have the means to attract them. And isolating them on the Island by hours of travel is not how to do it.

ISOLATING SEA

This same isolating sea, he explained, is so familiar to us that we fail to recognize it as "the most important asset Nanaimo has."

"It is 60 miles closer to the fishing grounds than Vancouver."

He proposes the Seattle-Nanaimo run be of 15 minutes, by a 15-passenger plane, which would travel the distance several times daily.

"This is just the beginning."

"This should have been done 20 years ago."

He referred to the plans and talk that has gone on for years as coming to nothing.

"I did something concrete, I didn't talk," he explained as being the reason he had invited the two men here to discuss his plans.

BOTH MEN

Both men apparently have expressed interest and have indicated they might be willing to back it.

This was not his only idea, however.

His plans reach farther south than Cassidy Airport.

In an interview he said, "I'll tell you something else. Victoria should be connected to San Francisco the same way."

"Then we might get an international airport here on the Island."

ISLAND, TOO

His ideas for development also include Newcastle Island.

He said if the Island was made a federal park and developed as such, with about 100 acres of the 750 acres as real estate development for hotels and other accommodation, the island would be turned into an internationally recognized playground.

Red Cross Stresses
Safe Beach Practice

PARKSVILLE — Mrs. R. E. Parker was re-elected president of the Mt. Arrowsmith branch of the Red Cross at a recent annual meeting.

Re-elected vice-president was Dudley Wickett, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. N. Brand.

Others are: Second vice-president, Mary Almond; swimming and water safety, Jacqueline Good; blood donor clinic, Mrs. H. Estlin, Mrs. H. K. Waldman; disaster relief, Dan Parker in Qualicum Beach and Jack Booth, Parksville; loan cupboard, Jack Booth, assisted by Mrs. Booth; Junior Red Cross, Mrs. W. T. Thorne.

Mrs. Vera MacPhail, reporting on swimming classes said they were successful.

She expressed concern over unsafe practices at the beaches, where speed boats were often brought in so close to shore that they created a danger to bathers and swimmers. The practice of horseback riding along the beach also created a safety hazard and should be stopped. It was pointed out that all children always should wear lifebelts when out in boats.

It was decided to ask the RCMP to make periodic checks for safety infractions at the beaches during the summer.

Campaign manager Jack Booth reported the branch went well over the $1,800 quota, and turned in $2,006, one of the few branches in B.C. to reach its objective.

Mrs. J. Booth was appointed delegate to attend the Red Cross B.C. division convention in Vancouver, March 20 and 21.

Curteis

Our Principals

Cedar To NATO

Thomas Curteis of Willows elementary school is a Greater Victoria principal whose career has included a two-year "hitch" abroad.

Mr. Curteis was born in Port Angeles. His parents were English, however, and therein lies the explanation for the unusual spelling of his name.

Research during a visit overseas a few years ago showed the family descended from a man named Courtis, who came to England from Normandy with William the Conqueror.

RAISED AT CEDAR

Mr. Curteis' parents brought him as a child to Vancouver Island, and he was raised at Cedar, near Nanaimo.

He received his early education there and at Ladysmith high school, going on to UBC for his BA and BEd. after taking teacher training at Victoria Normal School.

Luckier than many in those days, his first teaching post was right at home in Cedar, where he taught primary grades for three years. The next three were spent at the Indian school at Vernon before coming to Victoria in 1941.

SECOND YEAR

Here he taught for a year and a half at Tillicum, then finished the second year as principal of Royal Oak school.

For the next eight years he was principal at McKenzie Avenue, and he spent one at Tolmie before moving to Willows in 1952.

There he has been ever since, except for the years 1961-1963. This was his overseas period, when he was principal of an RCAF school for NATO at Ramstein in West Germany. Here too his name caused some confusion, for the German people knew only one way to pronounce the "ci," and he grew accustomed to being called "Mr. Curteyes."

CITY CHAMPION

Mr. Curteis says his favorite hobby is chess. At one time he held the city championship for three years, but regrets he has little time for it now. He has also retained a keen interest in all sports.

His is truly a teaching family. His wife, whom he married at Cedar, was a teacher. Their son and daughter followed the same profession, the latter teaching now at St. Patrick's School in Victoria and the former taking extra studies at UBC. — E.M.S.

Driver Hurt In Collision

One man was treated in St. Joseph's Hospital following a two-car crash early Wednesday morning at Quadra and Hlside.

George Weatherall, 410 Gorge West, was treated for head cuts and rib injuries suffered when his eastbound car collided with a car driven north on Quadra by Robert Johnson of 608 Cornwall. Damage was estimated at $1,400.

Water Ski Finals Here?

Beaver Lake may be the site of the Canadian water ski championships in July, if Saanich gives permission. An application to use the northeast shore of the lake was received Wednesday by the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee but, because the Elk-Beaver parkland complex will probably be under the jurisdiction of Saanich by that time, the bid was referred to the northern municipality.

33 Swiss Ships

BERN (AP) — The Swiss merchant fleet reached a total of 33 ships with an over-all displacement of 300,000 tons during 1966, the government says. Switzerland, surrounded by other European countries, has no ocean port.

C. S. Dumaresq of Victoria, president of the B.C. Water Ski Association, pointed out this would be the first time the nation-wide tournament would be held in this district and Beaver Lake was chosen because it met necessary specifications.

The lake is protected, it has sanitary and telephone facilities and is close to the highway, which would facilitate press coverage.

City parks administrator Herbert Warren said a special resolution would have to be passed by Saanich council permitting boats to travel in excess of five miles an hour. At present certain sections of Beaver and Elk Lakes are barred to speedboats. Included is the area under consideration.

Mr. Warren added an expenditure of about $1,000 would be necessary to clean up margins of the lake and improve the road to a nearby parking area which would be used.

Stack Swept From Agenda

SANDGATE, Vt. (PA) — The annual town meeting agenda included appropriation of funds to repair the town hall chimney. The hall burned to the ground an hour before the meeting was to begin, and the blaze apparently began in the chimney.

Black Denies Health Report on Buttle

Health Minister Black denied Wednesday night that any report on the effects of mining activities at Buttle Lake was ever prepared by the public health engineer's department. He told the legislature in reply to a series of questions by David Barrett (NDP) — "I am not aware of any such report and that, while an engineer was in the area, he did not submit any report on possible pollution of the lake."

Mr. Barrett then told the minister, "I have every reason to believe the answers given you may be inadvertently incorrect." He received a verbal assurance that Mr. Black would look deeper into the matter and "tell you what I know about it."

Gordon Doydning (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) said a report from the health engineering department is mandatory under the Public Health Act and that if none was prepared the government was derelict in its duty.

The situation described by the health minister was "incredible, illegal and it's deplorable."

'Municipal Royal Commission'

Juvenile Issue Faces High-Priority Probe

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

The grave problem of juvenile delinquency received the highest priority Tuesday when the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee turned the issue over to a committee composed of top civic leaders.

What was described as a "municipal royal commission" will consider the findings of the Community Welfare Council, following a district-wide search for solutions, and seek methods of getting fast action on a problem which is growing ever more serious in the area.

A number of citizens had approached the welfare council on the problem, said the president, Brian Tobin, and it was suggested that, if there was going to be any action, it would be wise to get the co-operation of Victoria's mayor and the district reeves.

Many studies had been made over the years and pressure for solutions continued to grow, he added.

Acting on behalf of the municipal leaders, the council would seek solutions for the problem from the people of the district and from local organizations.

They would analyse them and examine them for possible remedies to problems of the young.

These remedies would be brought back to the committee in the form of recommendations, Mr. Tobin said.

INAUGURAL SPEECH
You will recall that in his inaugural speech this year Mayor Stephen said he intended to curb delinquency and to make the streets safe for people at night," he said.

"We thoroughly agree with this determination, but we would like more knowledge about causes of delinquency and how to deal with it."

ON TWO LEVELS
If the whole question was sifted, said the council's executive director, Garth Homer, it was likely corrective measures would be urged on two levels, municipal and provincial.

"Well, we certainly can't turn our backs on this problem," said Reeve Curtis of Saanich. "How have other communities dealt with it, and with what success?"

ONLY METHOD
There were several classic examples and in each case a satisfactory solution was reached only when the elected representatives of the people became involved, Mr. Homer said.

The mayor will convene the committee and hear reports from the welfare council after which a course of action will be determined, Mayor Stephen said.

It had been suggested earlier that cost-sharing be equalized. Urban members of the present metropolitan board now pay about $2 per capita while rural members pay between 30 and 40 cents.

Sabotage Possible

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — Scotland Yard is investigating possible sabotage at Britain's newest atomic power station, the $44,800,000 plant at Winfrith. Piping inside an aluminum tank was damaged by mercury, which corrodes aluminum and is not part of the reactor's construction.

5,258 Deaths Canadian Toll

OTTAWA (CP) — Traffic accidents on streets and highways killed 5,258 Canadians in 1966.

An official province-by-province count reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed the 1966 toll was 7.3 per cent higher than the 1965 list of 4,902 deaths. B.C.'s figures were 520 last year, 500 the year before.

MLAs Honor House Clerk On Birthday

Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, E. K. "Ned" DeBeck, was king of the castle Tuesday, on his 84th birthday.

He was praised in the House, made a member of the Royal Order of the Whale's Tooth and given a birthday cake in the legislative dining room.

Premier Bennett told the House, "It isn't the number of seasons that count, it's how young you are from the neck up."

He said he wanted to tell Mr. DeBeck "how pleased we are to see you look so well, so cheerful, in spite of everything you have to put up with here."

Mr. DeBeck entered government service July 1, 1937, as superintendent of brokers, and was superannuated in 1948. He became clerk of the House in 1949.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said, "We all agree he is an outstanding personage in the House. I don't believe he's 84—I think he's 38, like another well-known personality."

Liberal leader Ray Perrault told the House Mr. DeBeck "adds dignity and stature to the House, with a sense of humor."

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell then presented the clerk with a whale's tooth mounted on a gold chain, saying Mr. DeBeck was one of seven who have been made members of this rare order from northern Vancouver Island.

Speaker William Murray and Paul Neilson, chef and caterer in the legislative dining room, later presented a birthday cake to Mr. DeBeck.

Mr. DeBeck, an honorary member of the legislative press gallery, was also given a card and a gift by this group.

Nicholson Prediction

Cash Lack Not Over

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson predicted Wednesday night a serious shortage of mortgage money will continue to inhibit housing construction for at least the next four months.

He told a housing conference sponsored by the University of British Columbia that Canada will need 170,000 new homes this year to keep pace with demand.

The labor minister, who is also responsible for administration of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said the demand for mortgage money will probably continue to outstrip the supply during the first half of 1967.

"It would not be incorrect to say that immense strides taken during last year in most other fields of endeavor were made possible largely at the expense of housing," said Mr. Nicholson.

He said house production fell to its lowest level since 1962 last year and investment funds normally available for housing were channeled into other areas.

Bylaw Test?

Crow Must Go

By NANCY BROWN

Doing what comes naturally could be the downfall of a rooster who crows at dawn in Esquimalt.

One living near Glenville Avenue could be the subject of the first prosecution under the controversial anti-noise bylaw.

At a meeting of the public works committee Tuesday, Coun. Arthur Mebs asked if complaints could be dealt with under the poultry bylaw.

"If we don't catch him under that, we'll catch him under the anti-noise bylaw," he said.

"All the same," he said afterwards, "I do feel sorry for his 15 wives. They'll be an unhappy bunch of chicks if anything happens to him."

Saanich Silent

Saanich council, which for weeks has faced formidable agenda, was suddenly without work Tuesday night.

A meeting of Group A committees—fire, health and welfare, parks and recreation, legislative, finance and commerce—was called off when nothing could be found for them to discuss.

Ombudsman For Children?

Several Victoria health and welfare agencies are being asked to add their voice to demands for a "children's ombudsman" in B.C.

The local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association is canvassing other agencies for support for the proposal, which has been taken to the provincial government.

The "children's ombudsman" would be the secretary of a new provincial committee on children's affairs.

He would be a senior civil servant who would act as a liaison officer and consultant to various government departments and voluntary agencies which provides services to children.

He would also keep in touch with the federal and municipal governments on matters concerning children.

Graydon Roberts, president of CMHA's British Columbia division, said membership on the proposed committee would be drawn from provincial and municipal government departments, as well as voluntary

Chilled Capital Hushed for Vanier Funeral

Sorrow Fills Final Farewell

OTTAWA (CP) — A mourning capital paid its final farewell tribute to Governor-General George Vanier in three hours of solemn ceremony Wednesday that intermingled state pageantry with notes of religious triumph. (See also Page 19.)

It ended when the body of the 78-year-old head of state was gently placed aboard a funeral train that pulled slowly away in the early afternoon bound for Quebec City, where he is to be buried after further state and church services today.

Thousands ignored zero cold and a biting, west wind to stand bareheaded and silent under a sunny sky as the massive funeral cortege formed on Parliament Hill, where Gen. Vanier's closed coffin had lain in state in the red Senate chamber since late Monday. More than 28,000 viewed it there.

The flag-draped coffin had not been opened since the governor-general's frail body, dressed in his formal blue general's uniform, was placed in it soon after his death from a heart collapse Sunday morning. Eight red-jacketed RCMP constables carried the coffin out to the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings, hung with black drapes. There it was placed on a gun carriage drawn by 60 sailors from Halifax in their naval blues.

A few moments earlier one of the sailors, who had been waiting in the cold breeze for better than an hour, collapsed on the asphalt roadway.

Dr. Jean Vanier, one of Gen. Vanier's four sons, had just emerged with his family and quickly went to the sailor. He spoke to him reassuringly and helped him to his feet.

Put a UFO In Your Washer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Flying objects which frightened area residents by casting "an eerie glow and dripping flames" were identified Wednesday as laundry bags.

Police said science students at West Virginia University launched fluted laundry bags with a propulsion system based on the hot-air principle. A cardboard candle holder and a brace of candles which heated the air inside kept the bags aloft.

The fluted bags caused the "eerie glow" and dripping candle wax caused the "dripping flames."

Navy divers directed by Victoria police recovered the body of a man from under a wharf at the foot of Broughton Street early today. It had been in the water about four hours. The name was being withheld until next-of-kin had been notified.

Meat Strike Boils

Irish Farmers Chase Minister

DUBLIN (AP) — Picket lines of striking farmers blocked Dublin Wednesday and turned back trucks from Northern Ireland loaded with cattle and vegetables intended for the capital of the Irish Republic.

Dealers talked of a meat famine by the weekend. Stocks of vegetables were getting low in stores as a week-long strike entered its third day.

About 500 angry farmers crashed through a police line as George Colley, industry and commerce minister, arrived to open a factory at Ballyvaughan, 60 miles outside Dublin.

FARMER HURT

The farmers pelted the car with chunks of turf and hammered on its roof with placards. Colley fled to a hotel, with the farmers in pursuit. The crowd broke up after hearing pleas from farmer leaders.

Somewhat, a truck loaded with cattle got through the picket lines and unloaded at a Dublin slaughterhouse. It plowed into the picket lines on the way out, injuring a 60-year-old farmer.

The strike was called by the National Farmers' association. Ireland's 200,000 farmers are demanding larger subsidies from the government and protesting the imprisonment of 84 farmers.

TRAFFIC BLOCKED

The jailed farmers refused to pay fines imposed after they demonstrated on Irish roads Jan. 9, blocking traffic with tractors and other heavy machinery.

The association estimates that since the strike started more than 150,000 cattle, sheep and pigs have been kept from market. Some 250 bacon workers have already been laid off.

UNIONIST RELEASED

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday dismissed a contempt charge against union leader Orville Braaten, who had been jailed Feb. 22 for contempt of a royal commission investigating invasion of privacy.

But Mr. Justice Peter Seaton refused a further application by Mr. Braaten's lawyer to halt the "bugging" inquiry.

Mr. Braaten, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, had been free on bail since his lawyer, Mary Southin, presented the applications Feb. 27.

Mr. Justice Seaton criticized hearing commissioner R. A. Sargent for taking the inquiry beyond the scope outlined in the terms of reference. He said all parties attempted to use the commission as a sounding board for an inter-union dispute.

Mr. Braaten was jailed after refusing to answer inquiry questions about his union's dispute with the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Justice Seaton said Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

The royal commission was triggered by the electronic bugging of last November's convention of Braaten's union.

Mr. Justice Seaton said the arguments between the unions might be the background to the animosity between them, but not background to the use of electronic wiretapping equipment for the purpose of invading privacy.

RETURN TO SCOPE

The order-in-council did not authorize an investigation into the union dispute, he said.

Mr. Justice Seaton said it was up to commissioner Sargent to determine the best manner of returning the inquiry to the scope set down in the order-in-council.

In releasing Mr. Braaten on the habeas corpus writ, the court said the warrant committing him was defective. It should have alleged the questions Mr. Braaten failed to answer touched the subject matter of the inquiry.

DID NOT TOUCH

Mr. Justice Seaton said it follows from this conclusion that Mr. Braaten should not have been jailed for refusing to answer questions which did not by any conceivable means touch the subject matter of the inquiry.

Mr. Braaten's lawyer applied for the writ and restraining order after the union leader's order for commitment. She also asked that the commissioner be restrained from committing any person to jail. The latter application was refused.

Red Revolt Crushed In Indonesia

JAKARTA (UPI) — Units of the Indonesian army crushed an uprising by outlawed Communists in a battle in central Java, the official Indonesian news agency Antara reported Thursday.

It said the leader of the Communist force and 80 of his followers were killed.

Antara reported more than 1,000 Communist cadres were captured, crushing an attempt to stage a coup.

Central Java is a stronghold of forces loyal to President Sukarno, who bitterly oppose the current efforts to strip him of his title and put him on trial for treason as an alleged accomplice in the abortive Communist coup of October, 1965.

Antara's report came as the Indonesian congress debated a resolution demanding Sukarno's dismissal and trial as a traitor.

Gen. Suharto, the Indonesian army strongman who has assumed most of Sukarno's powers, warned harsh actions could start a civil war.

Antara said the clash erupted when army troops raided a key resistance base of the outlawed Indonesian Communist party. It had been camouflaged as the headquarters of a mystic identified as Suro, whose practice was banned by central Java military authorities last year.

British Kept Rights

Offshore Argument Begins

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government argued Wednesday that British Columbia up to the time of union with Canada in 1871 had no jurisdiction over lands under its territorial sea or the continental shelf off its coasts.

C. F. J. Carson, head of a five-member battery of lawyers appearing for the federal government, made the assertion as the Supreme Court of Canada opened hearings into a government-ordered reference into ownership of mineral rights off the B.C. coast.

Prepared to argue against Ottawa are lawyers representing Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and B.C.

presented at the hearings but will not present any arguments. Manitoba and Alberta served notice they will not be represented.

Quebec had refused from the start to appear and Saskatchewan with no seacoast also is taking no part in the legal battle.

Opening the federal case Wednesday, Mr. Carson said two areas are under question—the land under the three-mile territorial sea off Canada, and the land under the continental shelf which stretches seaward from the three-mile limit.

He said B.C. was not a sovereign state, before union with Canada. It had been a British colony and the extent of its government and jurisdiction were subject to the control of the British.

The British had rights in the territorial seas and had never transferred these rights to the colony.

Because of the funeral of Governor-General Vanier, the court held only a short afternoon sitting but will return to its normal two sittings today.

Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, administrator of the country pending appointment of a new governor-general, is not on the bench for the reference. Seven justices, headed by Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright, are hearing the reference although it is the practice for the full nine-man court to hear constitutional issues.

High-Level Opposition to Union Called Strong

Police Case Bares Bitter Feelings

By WAYNE THOMAS

Bitter feelings came to the surface Wednesday at an arbitration hearing in the Law Courts concerning Victoria's police force.

The hearing began Tuesday and was called by the president of the Victoria policemen's union, Constable Lorne Shandley, who charged he had been dealt with unfairly by the city police commission.

He claimed he was passed over for promotion in February, 1966, despite a department promotional board recommendation.

Constable Albert Wells, a member of the force for 18 years, told the board under oath from witness box of strong high-level police opposition to the Victoria policemen's union.

Three Years

He told the board the present deputy chief, Ray Maitland, a former inspector, told him three years ago, "There are the union-busters — the agitators like you — and the good guys."

He said Maitland had told him in closing, "As long as I have anything to do with this department, you'll never go anywhere."

Deputy Chief Maitland, under oath, denied making the statements.

Chief Constable J. F. Gregory later told the board he had never known Constable Wells to lie.

One of the three board members, C. R. Maclean, a Vancouver barrister, suggested the issue be dropped because "there appears to be an act of perjury by one party."

Trio Named

The board is composed of chairman B. W. Dysart, a retired Victoria civil servant; Kenneth Murphy, a Victoria lawyer nominated by the Victoria police commission; and Mr. Maclean, nominated by the policemen's union.

Chief Gregory told the hearing a man junior to Constable Shandley, who had scored 70.75 points in a rating system as opposed to Constable Shandley's score of 75.75, was promoted above Constable Shandley.

He admitted this was contrary to the police promotional board's recommendations.

Reasons Why

He listed a number of reasons why he recommended Constable E. Gordon Bennett to the city police commission for the position of sergeant, instead of Constable Shandley, in order:

- His appearance, including dress, was always immaculate.
- His leatherwork was well shined.
- His boots were well shined.
- His respect for authority was very obvious.
- He was a supporting captain of the voluntary drill squad.
- He had six letters from the public in his file, commending him, while Constable Shandley had only one.

Unionist Shandley

• He had taken only 32 days off as sick leave during 12 of his 23 years of service while Constable Shandley "is recorded as having 231 days off during his 21 years."

Constable Bennett was far ahead of the other men listed in regard to merit, ability and performance, Chief Gregory said, and he felt he was the better man for the job.

"I had no bias whatsoever," he added.

Chief Gregory said a Vancouver city police training academy report also showed Constable Bennett having a higher class average than Constable Shandley.

The police promotional board is appointed by the city police commission.

Chief Gregory

Gordon Carter, a Victoria businessman, told Constable Shandley's counsel, Dermot Owen-Flood, from the witness box he was chairman of the board and a member of the commission, which includes Mayor Stephen and John Martin.

"The commission is composed of ordinary men off the street, and I can't speak on police matters," he added.

Eight Names

Evidence was presented that the promotion board recommended eight names, in order of preference, to fill four vacancies. Constable Shandley was fourth on the list, and Constable Bennett sixth.

Mr. Owen-Flood suggested earlier in the day Constable

Deputy Maitland

Shandley was bypassed for the position because he was separated from his wife and he had been president of the union for 15 years.

Attorney for the Victoria police commission is E. E. Pearlman.

Mr. Pearlman, when asked for the second time in the day by Mr. Owen-Flood to supply certain police commission and department documents, said, "I'm not your messenger boy."

Both Constable Wells and Constable Shandley said outside the hearing they felt they were "committing suicide" in regard to their careers.

At both days of the hearing, five or six off-duty constables sat at the back of the room.

The hearing resumes at 10 a.m. today and is likely to conclude at lunchtime.

Political Forum Succumbs

Lack of interest has killed the newborn Victoria Political Forum and cancelled the appearance here of two world figures, organizer Gordon Pollard said Wednesday.

Lee Harvey Oswald's mother and Lord Charles Moran, physician and biographer of Winston Churchill, will not be coming to Victoria, Mr. Pollard announced.

Miners Going To Court

Despite promises in the legislature Tuesday that all employees of the Cowichan Copper Company would get their wages, four former miners swore out complaints Wednesday against the company before a magistrate in Sooke. (See also Page 12.)

One of the miners, Peter K. Whitford, said Wednesday the men had taken the action "because there is no other course of action open to us. If we have to, we will push this thing right through. We are all working, but we feel we should get our money."

Other complainants in the action are Sydney Hall, Louis Henry Van Beers and Edwin Fendler.

Under the Payment of Wages Act, the men have only six months in which to start an action for back pay. The time expires March 16. The mining company will be summoned to appear in court within two weeks.

Victoria Remembers Vanier

More than 1,000 people of all walks of life braved a drizzling rain Wednesday morning to attend a remembrance service for Governor-General George Vanier.

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, Premier Bennett, Opposition leader Robert Strachan and Liberal leader Ray Perrault were among the many dignitaries and civic leaders attending the service in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral.

In a eulogy to the late governor-general of Canada, Very Rev. William Bullock, rector of St. Andrew's, said "Throughout this great nation today there is a wave of vast silence of a whole people pausing to do honor, respect and indeed to weep for a man who has stood for the ultimate in integrity in Canada."

He said true greatness could be defined by the words used by Premier Bennett in the legislature Monday, when he said: "He was a simple man really, but one with deep personal faith and humility, great courage and a desire to serve."

The rector said the governor-general "could not help but be a man of great courage" who was "impelled day-by-day from his youth to serve as though he had received a mandate to go and serve and teach all nations."

"This is why we know him as a man who loved other men ... George Vanier will never be a forgotten man."

Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton said in an address at the conclusion of a Requiem Mass, "Today we thank God for the life and example of a great Canadian, distinguished soldier, diplomat and statesman."

"He lived simply but greatly serving the people of the Dominion with faithfulness and great regard for their welfare. His was a character marked by the highest qualities which will endure."

The archbishop said the governor-general's secret of poise and high efficiency was that he was illuminated not only by high qualities but by a simple faith in God.

"He was always at ease and put others at ease because of the candor of the Lord burning brightly within," and his life had "simplicity, honor and integrity that will never die."

Earlier in the service, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes read a scripture passage, and those gathered in the cathedral joined in the singing of Abide With Me.

The muffled thuds of a 21-gun salute fired at Work Point by the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, echoed through the cathedral at the start of the service. Trumpeter Garvin Brunner of HMCS Naden sounded The Last Post at the close.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace said later in the day that flags on all provincial government buildings in B.C. would remain at half mast until Monday, for the state mourning.

A non-denominational memorial service was held in the chapel at Royal Roads at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday in honor of the late governor-general. Chaplain William Taylor conducted the service which included one minute of silence and the sounding of The Last Post.

"We shall issue the literature as soon as it can be developed," said Mr. Black. "This is something in which we will interest ourselves at once."

Dr. Patrick McGeer (L. — Vancouver Point Grey), who is a neurological researcher, said the incidence of LSD users had reached "epidemic proportions" in high schools.

It all started with Dr. Timothy Leary, fired from Harvard University for advocating the drug, "and I say we should fire every teacher in North America" who recommends to the public that they use this dangerous agent," added Dr. McGeer.

"This includes the public institutions of British Columbia," Dr. McGeer said B.C. needed a law to make possession or distribution of LSD an offence. The drug was like a disease, it spread like a disease, and "we should quarantine the people who use it."

The pseudo-experts say LSD "expands" the mind, said Dr. McGeer, but scientists have established that the opposite reaction occurs.

Driving Blamed In Death

A sports car driver was driving in an endangering manner in an accident Feb. 12 which killed his passenger, on the Trans-Canada Highway, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night.

Car driver Thomas William Davey, 1020 Costin, told the jury he had no recollections of what happened at his home after midnight "when the girls left." He said there had been a party.

Gary James Watt died instantly in the crash when the car crossed the centre line and slammed into a rock bluff early Feb. 12.

Testifying in a neck cast, Davey told Coroner Edmond Jorje de St. Jorre he had taken three or four beers and a small glass of wine during the evening.

The jury ruled Watt met his death on the Trans-Canada Highway between Bute and Wilkinson Road while a passenger in a car operated by Davey "in a manner endangering his own life and the lives of others."

Trades Teachers Urge School Soon

Greater Victoria teachers of industrial trades want a vocational school built anywhere in the capital region — but quickly.

They have gone on record as favoring "any suitable location" for the school, which has been sought by local school boards for four years.

The resolution was passed Tuesday by the Greater Victoria Industrial Education Teachers' Association, president Ross Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

But a portion of the land is owned by B.C. Hydro, which will not relinquish it until it gets an acceptable swap.

One week ago Education Minister Peterson said a new site is being considered at Colquhoun and Wilkinson Road. The spot has a sewer problem, he added.

John Baranus, chairman of the Sooke school board, wired Mr. Peterson Sunday asking him to expropriate the B.C. Hydro land at Burnside and the Trans-Canada Highway.

"The shop teachers are faced with pupils who want to continue their education and in many cases find difficulty in enrolling in a regional school."

'Victoria Through Centuries'

Applications have gone out to six out-of-town bands which would like to appear in Victoria's May 24 parade, members of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee were told Tuesday.

"Victoria Through the Centuries" will be the theme of the three-day-long weekend festivities. In addition to the annual parade, which will be held Monday, May 22, there will be a horse show, outdoor regatta and soapbox derby.

Philosopher Dr. Colwyn Williamson of the University of Alberta will discuss Marxist materialism in a public lecture at the University of Victoria today. The talk begins at 12:30 p.m. in the Education-Arts Building theatre.

Marx Topic Of Lecture

City parks department workmen completed the job Wednesday of placing 212 hanging flower baskets in the downtown section of Victoria.

The pressed-paper baskets contain daffodil bulbs which will be in bloom shortly, says parks administrator Herbert Warren.

When the daffodils are done they will be replaced with dwarf tulips. These in turn will be replaced with an assortment of mixed flowers.

Flowering Baskets In Place

There is obvious need for a school in the Victoria region," said Mr. Regan.

He added the teachers' organization will seek wider support for its stand.

It was Riley, one of the saved, who fought Primer, one of the lost, whereby the late boat casualty at Esquimalt occurred, and not Dawson, who is said to have been a most inoffensive man, and greatly lamented by his shipmates.

Several deplorable casualties have taken place lately at Esquimalt, through which men belonging to the ships stationed here have lost their lives while laboring under intoxication.

We wish to make an appeal—for some sort of home to which sailors might resort when on shore—to indulge in quiet amusement such as chess, draughts, bagatelle, skittles, bowls, etc.—a reading room and a coffee room where tea, coffee, lemonade and other non-alcoholic refreshments are supplied at a reasonable rate.

Where no such institution exists, seamen are forced to frequent public houses where the vilest of liquor is served out to them, and to contract habits that contribute to the demoralization of the individual and the destruction of his health.

We feel that the British seamen would hail with satisfaction a home where they could smoke, "tarn", and partake of harmless refreshments without being exposed to the temptation of grogshops.
